Presidential Approval of Cash Bonus Bill Seen By Senator Robinson

Democratic Leader Says Bill Probably Would Be Drafted Along Lines of the Proposal Advanced Last Session.

1938 MATURITY

Leaders of 3 Major Veterans' Organizations Line Up Behind Plan for Cash Payment.

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, today predicted passage of a cash bonus bill which will "receive executive approval".

In his first pre-session press conference, Robinson indicated such a bonus bill probably would be drafted along the lines of the Byrnes-Steiwer proposal advanced last session under which the adjusted service certificates would mature in 1938 instead of 1945 as provided at present. It was designed so that payment of their face value this month would bring veterans about 97 per cent of their ultimate maturity value.

Almost simultaneously, the House Steering Committee backing the Patman bill to pay the bonus in $2,000,000,000 of new currency agreed not to fight, on the house floor, any sentiment of a majority of members to strike out the currency-expansion method of payment.

"This committee is extending the olive branch," said Representative Patman (D-Texas), author of the bill, after a secret session attended by 14 of the score of members of the committee.

"We want to cooperate to the end that the veterans will get their money," he said.

Leaders of three major veterans' organizations lined up behind a new plan for immediate cash payment.

The ex-soldiers' leaders argued their plan would cost only $1,000,000,000 immediately, instead of the $2,000,000,000 usually mentioned. They said it offered an incentive, in the form of interest, to induce many veterans to hold their adjusted service certificates instead of cashing them now.

The plan—announced by the heads of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Disabled American Veterans—made no mention of methods of raising the money, leaving that to the government. Thus the inflationary Patman plan to pay with new currency, which passed Congress last session only to meet defeat after a veto, was tossed overboard.

Even before the agreement, bonus leaders in Congress had been saying they saw some possibility of pushing a "compromise" bonus bill to a House vote before the close of next week.

Immediate full cash payment of the adjusted service certificates, which under present law do not mature until 1945.

Refunds of interest paid on loans on certificates.

Cancellation of interest accrued and unpaid.

A stipulation that veterans who do not desire to cash their certificates may receive interest on their maturity value from the date on which full payment becomes possible.

Issuance of special government obligations in lieu of adjusted service certificates to the value of about $500,000,000 now held as security of the United States life insurance reserve account.

Lava Flow Subsides

Hilo, Hawaii, Jan. 2 (AP)—The flow of lava from Mauna Loa volcano had subsided today but observers watched the mountain closely for signs of further activity. Molten rock still seeped from vents in the mountainside but the volume was insufficient to affect the great river of lava now within three miles of Hilo's water reservoirs. Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, government volcanologist, said wisps of black smoke issuing from the volcano indicated the six-week eruption had ended or that the lava was piling up before again bursting forth.

Wreckage Is Found

Canton, China, Jan. 2 (AP)—The discovery of floating wreckage confirmed today reports that the steamer Watuchia, bound from Shantung to Kongmoon with 200 passengers and crew, foundered on December 23, and all persons aboard drowned. Authorities presumed that overloading caused the vessel to capsize suddenly, as no reports were received from her although she was equipped with a radio.

Student Is Injured

Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 2 (AP)—One student was injured seriously and eight policemen suffered slight wounds today in a clash precipitated by a demonstration of several thousand students of the Khedivr University. In another clash at Ayoussia, several students were injured when police employed clubs to halt a disturbance.

Ryder Cup Donor Dies

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—Samuel Ryder, 77, donor of the Ryder Golf Cup, for competition between professionals of the United States and England, died suddenly today in a London hotel of pneumonia. He previously had display at St. Albans, Eng., in 1926 for competition between teams of America and British professional golfers.

Roosevelt Broadcast Takes Nature of Political Bomb

Republican Leadership Demands Access to Same Radio Facilities and Audience to Make Reply, With Henry P. Fletcher Serving Notice on Two Major Chains—Incident Taken by Observers as Meaning Year's Presidential Campaign Will Be Vehement.

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—The New Deal's surprise move to start congress off with a night broadcast by President Roosevelt became an explosive political issue today, with the Republican leadership demanding quick access to the same radio audience to make reply.

Republican chairman Henry P. Fletcher declared that the plans for the delivery of the message on "the State of the Union" at a joint session at 9 o'clock, E. S. T., tomorrow night brought this annual presidential duty "down to the level of a political speech."

He served notice on two major radio chains—National Broadcasting Company and Columbia Broadcasting System—that the G. O. P. expects "an equal opportunity to place our case before the people with the same facilities, and same stations, and, potentially, the same audience." NBC said the request would be given "all due consideration," while CBS reserved comment pending consideration of the telegram containing Fletcher's demand.

The incident was taken by political observers here as another omen that the coming campaign will be especially vehement, with both sides struggling for maximum use of the broadcast waves and all other channels of publicity.

Fletcher's letter said it is apparent "that the president considers the members of the senate and house as only incidentally his audience and that he will be addressing himself to the electorate as a part of his campaign for reelection."

The Republican chairman said that unless the opposition party be granted equal facilities "the dominant party can control the instrumentalities of communication in an effort to perpetuate itself in power."

Fletcher recalled that only once before has a president spoken at a special night session — President Wilson's war message.

Congress will meet at noon tomorrow to attend to preliminaries and arrange the night session. Next week it will get down to business, with two major issues apparently slated for quick consideration.

They are the bonus and neutrality. With officials of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Disabled American Veterans newly agreed on one bonus payment proposal, observers look for an especially powerful drive for quick action. The veterans estimated their proposal, as announced last night, would cost less than $1,000,000,000 immediately. The plan specifies no method of raising the money, leaving that to the government.

The latest development on neutrality was a declaration by Senator Thomas (D.-Utah) urging wide presidential discretion in administering a neutrality policy founded on the "duty" of preserving the peace. The present law, expiring February 29, requires the president to embargo arms shipments to belligerents.

N.B.C. Makes Offer

New York, Jan. 2 (AP).—M. H. Aylesworth of the National Broadcasting Company today telegraphed Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican National Committee an offer of N.B.C.'s facilities "from time to time" to respond to radio addresses which Fletcher characterized as Democratic political propaganda.

The telegram was evoked by Fletcher's notice to two national radio chains, N.B.C., and Columbia, that the Republican party expected "an equal opportunity to place our case before the people with the same facilities, the same stations and, potentially, the same audience."

Specifically, Fletcher attacked the plan of President Roosevelt to have broadcast nationally his message to congress on the "State of the Union." The program, asserted Fletcher, brought the message "down to the level of a political speech."

Aylesworth, vice chairman of the N.B.C. board of directors, told Fletcher: "In accordance with the established policy of the National Broadcasting Company of making its facilities available to responsible speakers for discussion of both sides of public questions affecting the national welfare, we are glad to afford the representative or representatives of the Republican party whom you may select the facilities of the National Broadcasting Company for such discussion from time to time.

"If you will designate your speaker or speakers and advise us immediately, we will make early reservations of time."

Lindbergh Seeks Haven.

Liverpool, Jan. 2 (AP).—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh scouted England today for a home to bring fulfillment of his self-expressed desire for "quiet and rest in this country." Because of the very secrecy imposed on the movements of the flying colonel, Anne and three-year-old Jon, many and varied rumors arose as to their plans for the future. One report had it that their representative, W. H. Gregory of Boston, Cromwell and Co., had gone to London to negotiate for a house in Surrey or London, with the Lindberghs awaiting his return here before definite their plans definitely.

Daring Mass Murder Plot Thwarted With Killing of Asedillo

MANUEL QUEZON

Manila, P. I., Jan. 2 (AP) — Constabulary officers disclosed today that a daring mass murder plot had been thwarted with the killing of bandit Chieftain Teodoro Asedillo and two of his aides.

Notes found on Asedillo's body outlined a plan for outlaws led by Asedillo and "Captain" Kulas Encallado to raid towns on the shores of Laguna De Bay January 3. The bandits planned to execute officials and all constabulary informers in the raided towns.

The outlaw's memoranda did not indicate which of the many towns on the shores of the inland lake would be attacked. Laguna De Bay reaches to within six miles of Manila.

Constabulary bullets thwarted the contemplated reign of terror when Asedillo was trapped with three of his followers Tuesday. Official reports said the chieftain and two others were killed. The fourth, seriously wounded, surrendered.

Residents of Sampaloc village, one of the many mountain towns terrorized by the Encallado-Asedillo bands, seized Asedillo's body from the undertaker, crucified it in front of the city hall and plucked the hair of his mustache and head.

Gen. Basilio Valdes, constabulary chief, left today for the bandit region to lead the hunt for Encallado and the remaining 24 outlaws.

Dead or Alive Slogan

Manila, P. I. (AP)—Emulating the "G-men" of the United States in their determination to free America from gangsters, President Manuel Quezon, of the new Philippine Commonwealth, is just as determined that bandits must go from these islands.

Taking a leaf from the book of the department of justice, which passed the word that such gangsters as John Dillinger and "Pretty Boy" Floyd must be wiped out, President Quezon, shortly after he was inaugurated, informed the constabulary that the "dead or alive" sign must go up on bandits.

Leader Driven To Cover

So out into the provinces of Tayabas and Laguna went determined men of the constabulary, seeking Teodoro Asedillo and Nicolas Encallado.

As soon as the "heat" was turned on, Asedillo told his followers that since he was in no position to face the constabulary in open battle, he would stay hide and seek, and meanwhile his men must shift for themselves.

Mountains Hide Fugitives

The bandits are difficult to locate in their mountain strongholds, but President Quezon, determined that they be ferretted out, personally ordered Major Silvino Gallardo to lead the search.

The way of the bandit in the Philippines, so far as an informer is concerned, is similar to that of the United States had men. Fidel Ason, a resident of Sampaloc, Tayabas, was listed as an informer. Several days later his body was found hanging from a mango tree.

The bandits of the Philippines have confined their activities for the most part to wild mountain provinces. In the larger centers of population, such as Manila, bandits and gangsters are unknown.

Rome Will Not Apologize To Sweden For Bombing Of Hospital in Ethiopia

Fascists Take View That Travelers in a War Zone Must Take Risks; Beheading Reported Witnessed by Aviators.

SWEDISH RANCOR

Immediate Meeting of Swedish Red Cross Is Called to Consider the Case.

Rome, Jan. 2 (AP).—Informed sources said today the Italian government does not consider explanations to Sweden concerning the bombing of a Swedish-Ethiopian Hospital unit to be necesary.

The government now has been informed that no Swedes were killed in the Monday bombardment on the southern Ethiopian front and that only one was wounded.

(An Ethiopian communique from Addis Ababa today stated 28 Ethiopians were killed and two Swedish physicians wounded in the attack.)

Travelers in a war zone must necessarily take risks, Fascists said.

The Italian sources also declared that the beheading of two Italian aviators by Ethiopian troops, an incident which Fascist government cited to justify the aerial attack, was witnessed by other fliers from the air.

"Nothing of Note."

A communique from Marshal Pietro Badoglio stated there was "nothing of note on either front" today.

The Stefani (official Italian) News Agency, said Monday the bombing took place after Pilot Tito Minniti was captured and beheaded by the Ethiopians. A government communique yesterday said two aviators who fell at Daggah Bur, had been decapitated.

With the bombs, Stefani said, the Italian airplanes in the Dolo vicinity dropped leaflets which read: "You killed one of our aviators who was your prisoner by decapitating him against humane international laws, making the safety of war prisoners sacred, which we respected. In exchange you will have what you deserve."

Informed sources had explained earlier, that the fliers were beheaded after they had been forced to land.

The news agency also said that during the bombardment one bomb fell on one tent of a Swedish Red Cross encampment.

3 Major Issues.

Competent observers said three major factors in the Italo-Ethiopian crisis were causing national concern:

Possibility of American oil export restrictions under any new neutrality program adopted by congress.

Talk of a Franco-British defense accord.

Retarded progress of Italy's armies on both the northern and southern fronts in Ethiopia.

Successors to the "government spokesman," who went on a vacation from which he failed to return, asserted nevertheless, "we are very tranquil."

Determined to carry on with its campaign for east Africa, and its resistance to League economic sanctions, the Fascist regime shifted slightly its economic line-up. It created a sub-secretariat for exchange currencies, directly under Premier Mussolini's control.

This sub-secretariat concentrated functions formerly distributed among the foreign commerce and exchange departments of the ministry of corporations, the exchange "superintendence" and the various trade institutes.

Informed Fascists said this would merely tighten government control over them.

Fully Justified.

The government rested its defense on Monday's aerial bombardment on the southern front, on grounds that the attack was "fully justified" by alleged Ethiopian beheading of two Italian aviators.

A communique said, "the Italian planes did not mean to bomb tents of the Swedish Red Cross or other Red Crosses."

(Emperor Haile Selassie protested to the League of Nations, from his Dessye field headquarters, that the Fascists employed poison gas in the attack and caused "complete destruction of a Swedish Red Cross ambulance.")

Fires, Explosions Leave 20 Persons Dead, 8 Hurt In Various Parts of U. S.

Five Dead, Five Injured When Cellar Gas Explosion Destroys a Three-Story Tenement in Buffalo Italian Quarter.

3 CHICAGOANS DIE

Rooming-house and Apartment Blazes Take 4 Lives; Fire-place Ignites Woman's Clothing.

(By The Associated Press)

Fires and an explosion left 20 persons dead and eight others injured in scattered parts of the nation today.

Five died and five others were injured in Buffalo, N. Y., when a cellar gas explosion destroyed a three-story tenement in the Italian quarter.

Three fires in Wilmington, Del., killed five persons, one a woman whose clothing caught fire from an open fireplace.

A Chicagoan and two young daughters he tried to save from their flaming home in suburban Lombard were burned to death. Milo K. Miller, 28, had carried his wife and small son to safety and returned for the little girls.

Two men and a woman, all negroes, were burned to death in a Joliet, Ill., fire.

A rooming house fire in Washington caused the deaths of a woman, her 13-year-old son and a man.

At Rochester, N. Y., an elderly woman died of burns after 10 other persons had been carried to safety in an apartment fire. Two firemen were overcome by smoke.

A middle-aged negro was near death at Wilmington from burns suffered in a residential fire.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 2 (AP).—Five persons were dead and five others were in hospitals today as the result of a gas explosion which ripped to pieces a three story tenement in the Italian quarter New Year's morning.

The dead are Joseph Presifillip, 67, and his wife, Geraldine, 57; Thomas Scorsone, 44; his wife, Mary, 34, and their daughter, Anna, 12.

Another Scorsone child, Rosa, 3, was reported in critical condition but her brother and sister, Peter, 5, and Toinetta, 9, were believed out of danger. The others injured are Santo Presifillipo, 17, and his brother, Joseph, 13, sons of the dead couple.

The blast occurred shortly after 8 a. m., yesterday and reduced the 40 year old building in Le Couteulx street, a short distance from the main mountain district, to a mass of debris.

Authorities agreed the blast was due to escaping gas in the cellar.

Police believe Presifillip struck a match to light a candle and the explosion followed. The building collapsed and buried the two men, two women and four of the children under the wreckage.

Two Men Seek Record.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Jan. 2 (AP).—Lou Moore and Harlan Fengler of Los Angeles disclosed in a letter to Daytona Beach Chamber of Commerce today that they are building the "Yankee Doodle," an American challenger of the world's land speed record of 301 miles an hour set in Utah last fall by Sir. Malcolm Campbell. The two Californians gave no details about their car. They wrote here for particulars of the city's offer of $10,000 to anyone who would successfully attack the Briton's record, on the speedway here.

Crew Aids Dog.

Cambridge, O., Jan. 2 (AP).—A Pennsylvania freight train arrived late today, because the crew stopped to untangle a dog from a wire fence that had held it since Sunday while temperatures dropped to 14 below zero. The crew said they noticed a Beagle hound hanging by its hind legs Sunday but thought the animal dead. On the return trip, however, one of the men saw the dog's head move. The railroaders brought the dog here where a veterinarian fed and treated it. The crew said they would adopt the animal.

Lehman In Message Asks For Increased Liquor Tax To Carry Social Security

Republicans Move to Center Major Share of New Deal Attack on Security Program in Order to Lower Taxes.

RELIEF PROBE

Governor Recognizes Republican Challenge to Investigate Unemployment Relief.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 2 (AP).—The Roosevelt administration's social security act loomed today as one of the major controversial issues of New York state's 1936 legislature.

Twenty-four hours after Governor Herbert H. Lehman gave unqualified endorsement to the act in his annual message to the lawmakers, Republicans moved to center the major share of their New Deal attack on that program. Principally because its application in the state may necessitate an increase in liquor taxes.

"The provisions of the federal social security act in many respects vitally effect the people of our state," the governor said. "New York must decide whether it wishes to cooperate with the federal government in this far-reaching program of social progress or whether it does not wish to cooperate.

"My convictions prompt me to urge strongly to your honorable bodies that you take whatever action may be required to have the state of New York cooperate."

He estimated that the social security act's regulations for dependent children and the aged would cost the state an additional $4,000,000, "which could be obtained by a moderate increase in the tax on alcoholic beverages."

Republican opposition was in line with their policy to seek reduced taxes, and particularly as part of their program to "end New Deal domination" in the state preparatory to the 1936 Presidential election.

Relief Investigation

The governor's message also recognized a Republican challenge to investigate unemployment relief. Mr. Lehman recommended a "legislative commission" to map out a long range program for a permanent state organization. The Republicans pushed a measure designed to carry out their proposal for "an impartial investigation to bring out the facts."

The intra-party Republican struggle to organize the Assembly finally was accomplished with the election of Assemblyman Irving M. Ives of Chenango county and Ansley B. Borkowski of Buffalo as clerk. This branch of the legislature returned to GOP control after lapse of a year.

Assemblyman Oswald D. Heck of Schenectady, who has served four years in the House, was named floor leader by Speaker Ives.

Among other major proposals of Governor Lehman were these:

A highway safety program fixing the speed limit at 50 miles an hour, enlarging the state police, enacting severe penalties for reckless driving, regulation of outdoor advertising and safety education.

State Reapportionment

Immediate reapportionment of the state under the 1930 federal census of the legislature, or failing this, redistricting by the court of appeals on demand of the people in the counties of Queens, Bronx, Kings, Nassau and Suffolk.

Reform of county and town governments to eliminate officials and simplify the systems for economy.

Immediate enactment of constitutional amendment for a four-year term for governor and a two-year term for assemblymen, initiation of amendments by petition, and personal registration of voters.

A study of the milk control law to obtain interstate agreement including federal agencies, and creation of a commission to study the ravages of Bang's disease and mastitis in the dairy industry.

Enactment of legislation to bring the white collar worker under the protection of the labor law.

Farm Road Program

Five to 10 year "farm to market" road program.

Absence of six Democrats from the House aided the Republican regulars to organize the Assembly a 72-70 vote without the support for Speaker Ives of the Erie delegation of six and two representatives of Suffolk, home county of former Republican State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy.

Had the six Democrats been present, they could have renamed Assemblyman Irwin Steingut as Speaker. Steingut was made Democratic minority leader.

The way now is open for Ives to name Assemblyman Leonard W. Hall of Nassau county as chairman of the committee.

The Erie group has vigorously opposed Hall's appointment. Erie county Chairman Edwin F. Jaeckle charged the state chairman with seeking to "trade" the job to Nassau in return for their financial contribution to last fall's election campaign.

If Hall receives the post, it is considered likely that the breach between the Jaeckle group and the regulars will be widened and that Jaeckle may give his support to former State Chairman Macy and Rep. Hamilton Fish, Jr., in the Hook-for-president movement. Fish supported Macy for the legislative job.

Nit-Wit Driver Is Still At Large Here

A passer-by was impressed with the thought this morning, as he witnessed an incident at West O'Reilly street, that it will take more than safety campaign arguments and slogans to stop the appalling slaughter by automobiles and that until a lot of irresponsible nit-wit drivers are yanked from seats behind steering wheels the senseless death-roll will continue to increase.

The incident—and near fatal accident—occurred about 7:30 this morning. A pedestrian, walking down Broadway, approached the corner of West O'Reilly street just as an automobile came up to the intersection and stopped, waiting for a chance to turn into Broadway. Everything, apparently, being clear, the pedestrian started to cross the street, back of the waiting car. He had gotten two-thirds of the way across when suddenly a long black delivery truck, coming up Broadway, without warning of any kind and without waiting until it could make the turn into O'Reilly street on its right side of the street, swerved sharply and shot into the cross street, close to the corner and on the wrong side.

The man who was walking saw the menace just in time to jump out of the way and get to the lower sidewalk as the truck whizzed past him. The only effect the occurrence seemed to have on the driver of the truck was to cause him to turn to his companion, with a fatuous grin, as much as to say, "Too bad, but I missed him that time".

Claremont Shirt Co. Salesmen in Meeting

Sales representatives of the Claremont Shirt Company from virtually every section of the United States will gather in Kingston tomorrow and Saturday for a brief sales convention, highlights of which include the banquet at the Governor Clinton Hotel tomorrow evening and a welcome at the city hall by Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman at noon of the same day.

The salesmen will be the guests while in Kingston of the James S. Fuller Shirt Company, Inc., on Pine Grove avenue, Kingston representatives of the Claremont interests. The program is under the direction of William T. Fuller, treasurer of the Fuller company and Clarence S. Rowland, vice-president.

The visitors are expected to arrive at the Rondout bridge shortly before noon tomorrow, where they will be met by a delegation from the local concern. From the bridge the automobile caravan will go directly to the city hall to receive the mayor's welcome and the keys to the city.

An inspection of the Fuller plant and the consideration of the shirt business will occupy a part of the time of the delegates while in this city. The group will leave for New York city sometime Saturday afternoon.

KINGSTON SAVINGS AND LOAN ANNUAL MEETING

Checks to the amount of $27,950 were received today by members of The Kingston Co-operative Savings and Loan Association holding matured shares. These shares represent $200 each and have resulted from monthly payments of one dollar each for 143 months plus accrued dividends on these monthly payments of $57 for each share.

In addition to the checks, a number of mortgages were cancelled by matured shares thereby adding to the debt-free homes in Kingston.

Friday night the annual meeting of the Association will be held for the election of directors for 1936.

New Roosevelt Rebuff.

Atlanta, Jan. 2 (AP).—Mrs. Eugene Talmadge says she will be too busy with her cotton planting to pay a social visit to the White House next week. The wife of the anti-New Deal governor of Georgia yesterday declined Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's invitation to call at the White House on the afternoon of January 8, a day before a meeting of the national Democratic executive committee, of which Talmadge is a member.

3 Burned to Death

Chicago, Jan. 2 (AP)—Milo K. Miller, 28, a Federal Reserve Bank guard and two daughters he tried to save were burned to death early today when fire swept their suburban Lombard, Ill., home. Firemen said the blaze resulted when Miller apparently used kerosene to start a fire. He carried his wife and small son, Dennis, to safety and then returned for his daughters, June, 6, and Shirley, 4. His body was found near their bodies.

To Fill Vacancy

Geneva, Jan. 2 (AP)—National groups of the Netherlands, Estonia and Cuba today nominated Dr. Manley O. Hudson of the Harvard University School of Law for the vacancy on the World Court created by the resignation of Frank B. Kellogg, American co-author of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact.

CAPITAL NEWS

HOLLISTER STURGES, Jr.

Albany, Jan. 2 (Special)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman, before a joint session of the legislature yesterday afternoon, delivered his annual message, and set before senators and assemblymen in a concrete form his wishes regarding new laws for the people of the state which he hopes will be enacted during the next few months.

While the bulk of Mr Lehman's message will receive endorsement from the public generally, it must be said in total fairness to him and to those in capacities of senators and assemblymen that he credited himself with a good many measures that have been urged by others at one time or another. There are not a few indignant representatives who listened to Mr. Lehman's words as he endorsed, by recommendation, plans that they themselves have advocated but have been refused.

Kingston's Senator Arthur H. Wicks, who wrote the Temporary Emergency Relief Administration law, recommended last year that a permanent system by the state be established and transferred to a department of Social Welfare. Mr. Lehman embraces this in his message. He speaks of a "long range policy" for relief and advocates a "pay-as-you-go policy for unemployment relief".

The governor further claims for his own credit county reform measures and tells us that they are from his own office, while in reality Thomas C Desmond, of Newburgh, has been a pioneer in this work ever since he became a state senator six years ago This same representative tried to restrict outdoor advertising, and along comes Mr Lehman to say that the state should regulate billboards and structures to preserve the beauty of the countryside and increase highway safety and efficiency.

As expected, a good deal was said about crime. "Later on during the session," said the governor, "I will transmit to your Honorable Bodies my program on the improvement of the administration of criminal justice." Republicans are just as keen to have legislation of this sort passed but their effort was made a year ago.

With emphasis, unemployment and unemployment relief were stressed as the greatest single problem confronting the nation at this time.

Determined to take up the cause of highway safety, the governor made a recommendation for inspection of automobiles, which makes the McCall measure, introduced yesterday requiring compulsory inspection semi-annually of all motor vehicles, likely to see passage. A large increase in the state police is expected as Mr. Lehman advocates further patrolling of the highways. In an effort to reduce death on the highways the governor went so far as to possible consideration of a law limiting speed of pleasure and business cars to 50 miles an hour and suggested that a speed limit be made so that over 50 anywhere in the state, with official exceptions, be illegal.

On county reform, Governor Lehman says he recommends eight principles: (1) establishment of a county executive; (2) creation of a county budget system; (3) reduction of size of board of supervisors; (4) elimination of overlapping special improvement districts; (5) abolition of useless offices; (6) appointment rather than election of certain officials; (7) centralization of responsibility for each function of government; and (8) simplification of the local assessment and taxation of real property.

When nthe governor got to reapportionment a Democratic senator murmered, "here's where we get it." Reapportionment has been a pet project of Mr. Lehman's for some time and rightly so. Today we are sending representatives to Congress from districts mapped out in 1911, and to Albany from districts for which lines were drawn in 1917. Meanwhile, population has changed or shifted so there is not the proper representation. If the legislature fails to reapportion this year it cannot do so again until 1940. "We must reapportion this year," says the governor. "There is no reason whatever for not doing it." But there is, and that reason is politics. If one party or another feels that new district lines will lose a few votes one can be pretty sure that such a measure will not be passed. This is what happened last time when the Republicans felt that way and nine Tammany Hallers from New York, who would have voted themselves out of office, so with combined forces they managed to defeat the measure in the assembly.

Mr. Lehman is still talking about the mass of social legislation that he and the two Democratic houses passed last year. He says, "Last year I presented to the legislature a comprehensive program of labor and social legislation. I am happy that all but two items of it were passed." He mentions unemployment insurance and goes on to say, "I am aware that many of you disapproved and, in fact, fought a number of these measures. May I point out that, in my opinion, it would be distinctly against the interests of both the wage-earners and the employers of our state to repeal, or emasculate by amendment, the essentials and principles of the labor and social progress achieved last year. As Governor of the State, I stand ready to exercise my veto power and my right to appeal directly to the people to combat any plan to destroy what I sincerely believe to be the finest set of social legislation ever enacted by any state in the country."

This means that the governor will stick by his guns When the unemployment insurance bill was being debated Republican spokesmen charged that the burden of three per cent on payrolls would choke business and industry in this state and drive them to other states to legally evade this form of a tax. So if the Republicans attempt to repeal this or other measures that the governor says he had put through last year he is giving them fair warning now that their actions will do little good.

Because Governor Lehman's message was kept with such secrecy until a few hours before delivery specculation had it that he was going to surprise everyone with its contents. This surprise seems to come in the form of a disappointment. Only the highway safety recommendations appear to be new.

Mr. Lehman, all through his message, set himself up as George R. Fearon would like to say, as a little Napoleon, and used "I" and "Governor" very frequently. He appeared to capitalize on his reputation as the most humane governor the state ever had and as his message is brought to the attention of the voting public it is noticeable from its tone that he wants the public to be impressed and think favorably of him. Perhaps he will run again

The appointment by Speaker Ives of Oswald D. Heck as majority leader in the Assembly came rather as a surprise to many. James J. Wadsworth, of Livingston county, was a leading contender for this post. Heck was the candidate of former Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies, who last year completed his 20th year in the lower House.

Mr. Heck was a guest speaker in Kingston last fall during the Assembl campaign when he visited that city and addressed a group of Republican women.

Today is a legislative day in both Senate and Assembly. Monday night will see the return of most legislators. At this time announcements of committees for the year in the Assembly will be made. As yet, because of the bolt by six Erie Republican assemblymen from the party caucus New Year's Eve, the chairmanship of ways and means has not been determined.

New sections of London subways are being built with a view to diminishing noise. Tunnels are being lined with sound-absorbing material, while 90-foot rails, of a new and softer alloy, are being laid down and welded by a new process.

Henry IV Takes Up Agriculture— It's In The Wallace Family's Blood

Ames, Ia (AP)—A tall, clean-cut youth of 21, whose father guides the farm policies of the nation, is learning the ABC's of agriculture at Iowa State College.

He is Henry Wallace IV, son of the secretary of agriculture.

Three generations of trail-blazing in agriculture have left their imprint on young Wallace. He is studying agronomy (a course of his own choosing) and he is keenly interested in poultry raising.

He plans later to study genetics, a field in which his father pioneered, and perhaps to make it his life's work.

It's in The Family Blood

"You can't breed agriculture out of the family's blood," he says

The Wallaces have blazed a well-marked trail through the agricultural division here. In 1869, when the division boasted a half-score of students who spent as much time in the fields as in the classrooms, Henry I brought "Tama" Jim Wilson to the school as dean of agriculture.

Through this agricultural scholastic mill next went Henry II, who later became secretary of agriculture under Presidents Wilson and Harding

Then came Henry III, the present secretary of agriculture, whose curiosity to know why corn grew the way it did brought him recognition as a geneticist.

Declined To Be "Pledge"

Henry IV, a living likeness of his father, is considered a better-than-not out to make a scholastic record average student, but he says he is ord Nor does he intend to become a "campus leader." Later, he says, he may work on the undergraduate agricultural magazine and take some journalism.

Two generations of Henry Wallaces—the secretary of agriculture and his son, a student at Iowa State College.

He stands nearly six feet tall, has brown hair and eyes and wears a ready smile.

As for fraternities and the social whirl, he has repeatedly declined to become a fraternity "pledge", but he says he might consider being an "active"—waiving the preliminaries

"I know what you usually teach your pledges," he says, "why should I fool around with that silly stuff?"

POLITICS at Random

By BYRON PRICE

(Chief Of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

AS THE old year recedes into history, the professional politicians differ widely in their forecasts for 1936.

This challenges attention, because it represents a widespread change of view. Until recently there was little disagreement among the experienced prognosticators when they spoke privately. Even prominent Republicans saw small likelihood that Mr. Roosevelt could be defeated for reelection.

Unquestionably Republican spirit rose rapidly during the fall months of 1935. Instead of going about their political chores with resignation and gloom, as they had done before, party organizers began really to try to lay a basis for winning the election. Many of them began to say it could be done handily.

Among the Democrats, the flag remained nailed to the mast, but it began to be understood that at least the campaign of 1936 would not be won by default. In other words, there was a general recognition, for the first time since Mr. Roosevelt became a popular idol in 1933, that the coming campaign would be fought desperately on both sides.

So matters stood in early December. Since then several events have unsettled the situation considerably.

Townsendite Strength

ONE of these was the sudden revival of organized sentiment for the Townsend old-age pension plan, accompanied by a hint that Dr. Townsend and his associates will place an independent ticket in the field.

That may never materialize, yet the threat of it alone complicates all political forecasts. The Townsendites claim several millions of adherents; presumably, as lines have been drawn up to now, most of these votes would go to Mr. Roosevelt in 1936. Their loss to a third ticket might conceivably turn the balance.

Then it developed also that the defection of conservatives from Mr. Roosevelt might be much better organized than had been expected.

It was disclosed that southern Democratic dissenters would meet late in January, under the leadership of Governor Talmadge of Georgia, to plan a campaign of opposition. It is questionable whether any of these dissenters think a renomination can be stopped, so the real purpose must be sought elsewhere. If the southern Democratic vote could be split by running an independent right-wing Democratic ticket in the south, that would give administration politicians something to think about.

Simultaneously it was announced that Al Smith was about to break his silence. What he says when he speaks, also in late January at a liberty league meeting, will be awaited with more than perfunctory interest.

Borah's 'Campaign'

ON THE Republican side, too, things began to happen. Several neatly-arranged applecarts were upset by the decision of Senator Borah to enter the presidential primaries.

With Borah waging a militant battle to "liberalize" the Republican party, it is difficult to see how a serious convention squabble can be escaped.

If Borah succeeds in dominating the convention, is it to be expected that the conservative elements of the party will fall in line behind him with that unity of spirit and that financial aid which have been considered requisite to Republican victory?

If Borah is beaten, can the party avoid the accusation of having been dominated by "old guard" influences, and can it save itself from the defection of several millions of liberals?

More than once in the past, all party hope of success at the polls has been obliterated by the ramifications of just such a struggle as now is developing among the Republicans.

Altogether, it is about as badly scrambled a situation within both parties as has appeared in any campaign. Some of the wisest politicians, whatever they may say publicly, are disposed at this stage to surrender to inward wonder about the outcome.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

There is a queenly air about some of the formal gowns this season—and then again others are quaintly sweet in an old fashioned manner. The new peacock silhouette reveals sophisticated lines in a sweeping, graceful manner. The style is well carried by the taller woman as it takes fair height to manage those trains or trailing panels.

While prints come in first for cruise or southern wear, they are being worn at formal occasions in town as well.

This multi-color printed formal gown makes a stylish picture with its peacock silhouette. The gown itself traces the figure closely, depending on the separate flowing panels for its gracefulness.

A V-neck is shown at front while the back is low cut—little flowers cut out of the print outline the decolletage and cross the shoulders. This bit of unique trimming breaks the severity and softens the neckline.

The two-toned sash picking out the predominating colors of the dress, ties casually at the side.

Another stunning model in a colorful print used a cape of black net, sprinkled with appliqued flowers of the print, to cover bare shoulders.

75 Bills Introduced At Opening Session Of State Legislature

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 2 (AP).—Proposals ranging from free milk for needy children to a flat $3 registration fee for motor vehicles are among the 75 bills introduced at the opening session of the 1936 legislature.

Senator Thomas C. Desmond of Newburgh, was one of the largest contributors. He introduced a series of measures designed to provide an eight-hour day and a six-day week for employes of state prisons and all state institutions and for all state workers including employes on public works. Senator Desmond also submitted in a 50-page document optional forms of county government under the new county home rule amendment to the state constitution.

Senator C. Tracey Stagg of Ithaca, proposed the flat registration fee of $3 for motor vehicles along with the establishment in the state tax department of a state traffic commission, with an appropriation of $25,000 to start it functioning.

Investigation of unemployment relief by a temporary state commission with a $50,000 appropriation was proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Perley A. Pitcher of Watertown.

Senator George R Fearon, Republican minority leader, proposed free milk for needy children with reimbursement to localities by the state for money expended. He fathered similar measures two years ago. Last year he opposed the plan to supply milk from TERA funds.

Senator Fearon also introduced a bill for optional forms of county government.

Officers arresting persons on a charge of driving while intoxicated would be required to file data for investigation of the case by the state motor vehicle commissioner within three days after arrest under the terms of a bill introduced by Senator Pliny W. Williamson, Westchester Republican.

Senator Ogden J. Ross, Troy Democrat, introduced a bill to create police training schools in counties, villages and cities of less than 100,000 population.

All these bills were Senate-sponsored, delay in organization held up the initial grist in the Assembly.

Will Not Apologize To Sweden For Bombing

a counter-charge that Ethiopian chieftains used Red Cross emblems for personal protection, asserted the number of dead from the bombardment was "not definitely stated" and insisted:

"New capital being made of this episode is without basis."

The French ambassador in Rome, Count Charles de Chambrun, meanwhile called upon his countrymen to exert "untiring obstinacy for peace."

Swedish Resentment.

Stockholm, Jan. 2 (AP)—Public resentment over reports of Italian bombing of a Swedish Red Cross unit in Ethiopia arose today as Prince Carl called an immediate meeting of the Swedish Red Cross to consider the case.

Sweden's Red Cross was reported reliably to take the view that Fascist aerial attacks—striking first an American hospital at Dessye and then the Swedish unit on the southern front—were directed intentionally against the Red Cross.

Prince Carl, as president of the Swedish Red Cross, summoned the organization into a special session today to decide any action to be pursued against Italy for the reported destruction Monday of its Ogaden province unit.

Informed sources said this nation's Red Cross was ready to send a greater, improved unit to Ethiopia and that contributions were pouring in with hundreds of men and women volunteering their services.

Swedish newspapers asserted Italian airmen had seen members of the Red Cross unit, waving Swedish flags to attract their attention to sparing of the Red Cross location, before the attack was launched on nearby Ethiopian troops.

Currency Used by Indians

Currency used among certain tribes of the North American Indians was "wampum." Long strings of cylindrical beads were made of shell as a medium of exchange. Purple shell was regarded as of greater value than the white. In Colonial times, such beads were recognized by the English and Dutch traders, and given a fixed value by the Colonial governments to regulate the Indian trade.

IN TOKEN OF APPRECIATION.

At this Christmas Season I would like to express my thanks, personally, to each of those persons in Kingston and Ulster County who have given material for the Styles-Stuart Genealogy. Only through their cooperation has it been possible to compile most of the family lines. There remain a few unfortunate gaps, because of the difficulty of locating some descendants. Perhaps there are readers of the Kingston Freeman who have records of Styles births, marriages, deaths, occupations and war service, which have not been sent in thus far. For anyone who would like to send these records now, I shall make special effort to insert the added material in the proofsheets. It is hoped to complete publication in January, and the price of the book is set at $2.95, which covers solely the cost of printing, binding and mailing the volume; there are no other charges whatever as this is solely a cooperative family work. It will be as nearly complete as the available records allow.

20 Million Dollar Show To Open on Capitol Hill

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP).—It's a $20,000,000 show that opens on Capitol Hill tomorrow when Congress convenes.

That is what it costs annually to maintain the national Legislature and all its appurtenances. The cost is about the same whether Congress meets all year or only a few months.

Salaries are the biggest items but plenty of money is required to maintain the expensive capital buildings and grounds, the government printing office, and the congressional library.

Salaries and contingent expenses directly attributable to the Senate run about $3,000,000 a year for the 96 members. The House, with 435 members, costs more than $8,000,000.

Each of the 96 senators gets $10,000 a year. Mileage costs about $50,000. With the hundreds of Senate employes, committee clerks, and senatorial secretaries, the Senate payroll adds up to $2,723,928.

Other employes are paid from a contingent fund that runs up to $536,000 this year, and includes $60,000 for reporting debates; $150,000 for investigations; and many other items, large and small.

Salaries for members of the House amount to $4,405,000, with mileage totalling $175,000. With the cost of all the House staff, clerks, and secretaries, the salary roll mounts to almost $8,000,000.

The House contingent fund is smaller than the Senate's, partially because there are fewer investigations.

Democrats Ask Quick Enactment of Program To Eradicate Crime

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 2, (AP).—Democrats today sought speedy enactment in the New York Legislature of an anti-crime program supported by Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., in face of Governor Herbert H. Lehman's declaration that he will submit his own proposals later in the session.

Senator John Buckley of New York introduced at the opening session yesterday 13 bills designed to strengthen New York's anti-crime statutes, and senate leader John J. Dunnigan immediately called a meeting of the codes committee to report the measures to the floor.

It is considered likely, however, they will not be acted upon favorably by both houses until the governor's program is submitted.

Most of the bills passed the senate last year, only to be killed in assembly committee.

At the same time, the legislators were asked in a Republican proposal to create a state department of justice similar to the federal G-men.

The attorney general's proposals included those to Permit a defendant, in lieu of being tried by indictment when he is accused of a felony, to consent to be proceeded against by the filing of an information

Permit five-sixth jury verdicts in criminal cases except where penalty is death.

Permit judges and district attorneys to comment on a defendant's failure to testify in his own behalf.

Permit a judge in his charge to a jury to comment on evidence and testimony and credibility of a witness.

Make the presence of a pistol or other weapon in an automobile presumptive evidence of its illegal possession by all persons found in the automobile.

Require a prison warden to give notice at least 48 hours prior to release of a prisoner to the police chief of a place in which the convict proposes to reside.

Create a felony court in magistrate's courts of New York city.

BETTER ROAD LIGHTING.

Hope for better illumination of highways, and therefore safer motor traffic, is derived from experiments with sodium vapor lamps made by the Chicago Motor Club. They shed a soft orange light, easier on the eyes than ordinary electric lights, and illuminating the roadway for a longer distance, so that pedestrians can be seen clearly for 200 yards ahead. This is a very important feature, because with ordinary lights it is impossible for a driver to see pedestrians, unless they are dressed in white, until the car is close to them. Illumination is said to be cheaper, too, with such lamps. The experimenters propose to string them on highways at distances of 125 to 250 feet.

If this would really take the strain from night driving, and make it safer, the idea should commend itself to any community. Half the motor accidents now occur at night, though there is only one-fifth of the daytime traffic. Moreover, if sodium vapor lamps are so good for fixed highway lamps, why not also for automobile headlights.

WINTER NUDISM

Hope that the country would get a rest from nudism during the winter is blasted. When a gloating inquirer, during the last cold wave, asked the executive secretary of the International Nudist Conference how the back-to-nature people were getting along, the reply was discouragingly cheerful. "We have more United States camps operating than ever before," he said. "Eighty three in all. What's a bit of snow and ice to a good nudist?"

He went farther. He showed the inquirer a lot of pictures of winter nudist activities. There were men and women skating and skiing and trudging through the snow and sitting on the ice, attired in nothing much but a frosty glow, and having the impudence to look as if they enjoyed it. "We'll all be nudists in 10 years," remarked the executive secretary. But really, we couldn't, you know. Even if nudism were morally and physically all that is claimed, it would simply ruin the clothing business. In fact, it would probably ruin all business.

TWO-MAN SENATE

The Ohio State Senate, under its own rules, may be in session with a minimum of two members present. That is how a certain little drama came to be enacted there in an all-but-empty chamber on December 26. The session had been in recess since December 20. The president protem entered the room, mounted the dais, looked out over the rows of empty seats and announced soberly that the Senate was in session. Immediately there arose one lone senator, the only other legislator present, requested the floor and, when it was granted, moved that the Senate recess until December 30. Said the president pro-tem, "If there is no objection, the motion is carried."

No one was there to object. The Senate recess was legally extended and the two senators, their duty to parliamentary procedure finished, left. It was absurd, but might have been worse. Generally speaking, the safest thing a legislature does is to adjourn. In various foreign countries, those two men would have proceeded to legislate for the state—possibly to adopt a new constitution.

LONGEST PUBLISHING JOB.

Early in 1935 the Columbia University Press took over what is said to be the longest publishing project under way in the world. On the last day of the year it published "Fascicle 2" of Volume II of the Oliver Dictionary of Latin Inscriptions. The real name of this work is "Thesaurus Linguae Latinae Epigraphicae." It was started in Italy nearly a generation ago. The first fascicle (small bundle of sections) was published there in 1904. The first volume was completed by 1912. The Columbia Press announces that it is speeding up the work now and hopes that it will be completed in 200 years.

Few would venture to forecast what the world will be like politically, economically and socially 200 years hence; but if printing presses are still running and books are still being published, this monumental scholarly work will probably be completed on schedule.

GOOD NATURE.

New light on the question of good nature is shed by Mrs. Ruth Pontico, a circus lady living in winter quarters at Sulphur Springs, Florida. Having recovered from a recent indisposition and gained 200 pounds, making a total of 735, Mrs. Pontico was feeling fine and oozing geniality. When a visitor remarked on her pleasant temper she observed: "Me good-natured? Of course, I'm good-natured! In my shape I can't fight and I can't run, so I've got to be good-natured."

So that's it, is it? And maybe that's the reason, too, why some thin people are good-natured. Maybe they're not very good at fighting and running, either. Human beings may take on protective temperament as birds and animals do protective coloration.

That Body of Yours

WATER AND WEIGHT

A world famous athlete—oarsman, a Diamond Sculls winner, and boxer—stopped his athletic activities and gradually accumulated a considerable amount of excess weight. He took a little exercise but finding that there was no loss of weight, decided to go for about an hour's work in the gymnasium — ordinary gymnasium exercises and three to five rounds of boxing.

Sure enough as he weighed himself before exercise and after exercise the first day there was a loss of three to four pounds. When he returned the next day his weight was the same as before the exercise of the first day, but again he took off three to four pounds by the exercise. This continued for one month at the end of which time he had lost no weight despite the exercise taken.

The explanation of this failure to lose weight was easily explained when it was found that after the exercise, immediately after returning home and during the night (he kept a pitcher of water by his bedside) he was in the habit of drinking from one to two quarts of water—perhaps a gallon and a half from 6 o'clock at night until 6 o'clock the next morning. In addition he was a big eater and liked his food well salted.

It is known that fat tissue is able to hold more water than other tissues of the body; one pound of fat will hold over three pounds of water, so that the loss of a pound of actual fat might mean the loss of four pounds of weight. Had this athlete continued his exercise longer he would have rid himself of some actual fat and the water it was holding.

Further, a grain of salt in the tissues is able to hold 70 times its weight of water, so the effect of salt in keeping water in the body is readily seen. This is why factory employes during the hot weather take tablets of salt when they drink water to prevent the loss of too much water from the body when they perspire.

However, those of us who are not overweight must not try to cut down on our water intake. Water is needed by every cell in the body, because every cell is like a little living fish.

But overweights already have more water than they need and by cutting down on their water intake will get rid of real fat when they exercise.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: Terry Willett is betting fiercely for the sake of Allaire West who treats him cut the last time he saw her. But LaMarr Terry's victim, is trying to blackmail Allaire's father lying that the man Allaire shot in a certain tropical port had died. And Allaire has been checking up on Terry's past, in Carteret Va quite innocent of all the trouble and scandal she has caused. LaMarr has lost his revolver, and is fighting hand to hand.

Chapter 22

SURPRISE

TERRY turned sideways just in time. LaMarr retreated a few steps and picked up a table lamp. He flung it at Terry's face.

Again Terry was just a split second ahead of him. And always he came on steadily, relentlessly, half blinded by the blood from the gash in his forehead, but always coming on.

A table went over, a chair was broken. They mixed it in the middle of the floor, LaMarr trying to jab a thumb in Willett's eye, gouging, fighting with fists, nails, teeth, and knees.

But all those tricks had been tried on the tall auburn-haired American at one time or another; some of them had worked once, but never twice.

He weathered the savage, desperate onslaughts with the sheer fury of his iron fists and the spirit that had been born from many fights in many places with all kinds of opponents.

Terry beat LaMarr to his knees. LaMarr's left eyebrow was hanging loose and a cheekbone was shattered. Willett grabbed him by the shoulders and hauled him to his feet. LaMarr sagged helpless in his grip, his knees buckling, his breath and heart and strength gone.

Willett saw that he was through. He released him and LaMarr sank down and fell over backwards, something crawly and shapeless and half blind.

"That's that," said Willett.

He wasn't in such good shape himself. His head reeled dizzily, one eye was blinded, and his ribs on one side ached from a bruising kick, but LaMarr had learned not to deal with a roughneck.

A ROUGHNECK! Yes, it was in her eyes, the eyes of a white-faced girl staring at the scene in that shambled room in horror. Good God! Had his brain been jarred loose from its moorings? Why, she was standing there on the threshold—Allaire West! He must be crazy.

But he wasn't crazy.

"Allaire!" Fox and Rayburne West nearly shouted the name.

The girl looked at the battered thing on the floor and then at the tall man standing nearby with blood streaming over one eye, his face still set in fighting mask.

Disgust and shock and horror. There went the works. Her father was trying to get her attention.

"Where have you been—?"

Her mouth curved briefly.

"If I told you, you wouldn't believe it. I can hardly believe it myself."

Terry Willett looked at her, tilting his head back to clear his vision.

"So you disappeared. Just like that. Just went off without a word and now you come back and can hardly believe it yourself. Where did you ever get the crazy idea you could do things like that? Or don't you care about the worry and trouble you cause, detectives running around all over the place and people tying themselves in knots trying to find you? But you probably will never see that. You're too used to doing what you want and to hell with everybody else. And now good night, all."

"Wait a minute, Terry!" It was Fox's voice. "You can't go out like that. Your head—!"

Attaboy, George, the lamp of reason.

"Mere scratch," said Willett briefly.

He strode out of the room and out of the house. Outside, he drew a long breath of cool night air. He needed it. Well, that was that, all right. Boy, he'd certainly shot the works.

But what difference did it make? Fox was there—and Fox wasn't a killer or a roughneck—he was a gentleman and a rising young Foreign Officer. He was of his world, born to the purple, and when he saw a snake he stepped over it and not on it. Good old Fox.

"Look out, Terry, he's armed:" Fox would die in his bed surrounded by great-grandchildren. The lamp of reason.

Terry was barebended and he knew he probably looked as though he'd just returned from the wars, but he hailed a taxi and bore the driver's astonished stare with composure.

"Gosh, Mac, what hit you? Want a doc?"

"Either that or some adhesive tape."

"Get in, boss, get in. I know a good doc."

Terry got in. He leaned back against the cushions and propped his feet up on one of the little side seats.

"How are the Giants doing?" he murmured.

BRIGHT sun was flooding the room when he awoke the next day. His head felt as though it had been hit with a collection of assorted sandbags. Had he been drunk last night? He pondered. No, he'd been slugged with something, that was right. A merry life, yea, truly; never a dull moment.

He looked at his wrist watch. Almost noon. Something was due to happen today. Oh, yes, he had to take a plane at Newark Airport for Miami and the Pan American Airways.

He got up and went over to the mirror where he regarded himself critically. He wasn't exactly a picture of beauty, with a discoloration around one eye and his forehead bandaged with several strips of surgical tape, and when he took a deep breath the ribs on one side ached. Well, don't take any deep breaths.

He showered and dressed quickly. Terry Willett dressed well in an easy natural way. He presented a smart, clean-cut appearance in dark double-breasted, blue shirt, wine-colored cravat, and his thick auburn hair crisply parted.

Then with his bags packed and his topcoat under arm, he paused by the table and picked up Puff Harrington's note. She'd evidently left it there right after he and Fox had gone out of the room last evening. There were two words hurriedly scrawled, "Thanks, Terry." Sic transit Puff.

You're welcome, babe. It didn't cost you anything but a cigaret case. Some detective's wife has that "evidence" now probably. He smiled slightly and tore the note into bits, letting the pieces filter through his fingers.

As he closed the door behind him and turned the key in the lock, he heard his phone ring. He hesitated a moment, who'd be calling him? Puff, maybe?

Well, whoever it was he didn't think it worth the effort to unlock the door and go back. What was the use? He let the phone ring. Terry Willett wanted to get away from here.

He had a short breakfast and then went to the desk to pay his bill. The phone girl said there'd been a call for him; no message. The party had been very eager to locate him and the phone girl had said Mr. Willett was leaving for Newark Airport shortly.

"Hope you have a nice trip, Mr. Willett," she smiled. She was very pretty and lots of men stopped by to talk about the telephone situation. It was just her luck that when one came along with whom she'd have liked to discuss the telephone situation, he wasn't interested in the telephone situation.

Black eye and bandaged brow, but that warlike-looking young man was a real gent, thought the telephone girl.

Willett arrived at the airport and the big tri-motored ship was already waiting, the sun shining on its silver body with a flood of gleaming reflections. The Miami plane! Coming, Corrigan.

With his foot on the step, he heard his name called.

"Terry—!"

He turned to see Allaire coming toward him swiftly. She seemed breathless and there was a touch of high color in her face. She reached his side and put a hand on his arm.

"You're not going, Terry? Not back to South America?"

He looked at her curiously.

"Why, of course."

"You might have come around to say good-bye."

He laughed shortly.

"I said good-bye last night—words and music."

"Let's get out of here," said Allaire, as a portly passenger waited impatiently to get aboard.

"Five minutes, sir," said the plane steward to Willett.

"More than enough," said Willett, and walked to one side. Allaire seemed to have something to say, but couldn't quite say it.

"If it's about last night," said Willett, "forget it."

"Oh, Terry, you can't go like this after all you've done. I wanted to talk to you last night, but you didn't give me a chance. It was grand of you to take my part, to work that beastly swine."

Allaire breaks into the news, tomorrow.

Sleet Shooting

In sleet as in trapshooting, the expert does not take del berate aim. He simply looks at the target with both eyes open, concentrates on breaking it, instinctively swings his gun along the line of flight, and at the right instant, without a pause, pulls the trigger. The exact spot to place the shot load can be learned only by experience. Nearly all sheet targets require a slightly different holding and swing just as flying birds do in actual field shooting experience.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON — Amid the wishful predictions of many politicians for a short session of congress and an early adjournment to the campaign fields, some of the highest ranking house officers have dropped utterances approaching cold discouragement.

It is customary, even traditional, for the leaders to say pleasantly that they expect everybody to be able to go home early, even if they cannot say it with real hope. But this time, precedent takes a setback from Speaker Byrns himself and from his right-hand man, the Democratic leader, Bankhead of Alabama.

What these two men say on the question of adjournment is most authoritative, as they will go a long way toward outlining the house's entire program. Thus, it must have given a chill to the optimistic when Bankhead frankly held off from forecasting a short session, made it known that his prediction was for something just about the opposite, and Speaker Byrns disclaimed any intention of applying the "gag" rule to house deliberations.

Neutrality Question

ASIDE from the prospect of long debate that would accompany an entirely free house there is a problem lying comparatively quietly below a mass of domestic legislation that may prove a real and heavy obstacle to a quick session. That is the question of neutrality, its potentialities for long controversy apparently are now overlooked in some quarters; but some observers believe a major storm may be gathering over it.

It was only at considerable labor that the leadership won the last congress, in an atmosphere of intense weariness among the members, to stave off a much more rigid "hands-off" policy than was finally adopted in the temporary measure then enacted and expiring in February.

Explosive Qualities

THE almost universal desire of members to get home last summer undoubtedly figured to some extent in behalf of the administration view. But now a leader in the defeated faction has served notice that the fight will be renewed with more vigor this session. Too, it is a question.

Curiously, it is approached by this congress just a short time after the anniversary—December 28—of the birth of Woodrow Wilson, whose face was etched deeply with grief and worry over that same problem of neutrality 20 years ago.

TALKS TO PARENTS

Growing Pains

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

Night after night Molly woke up with a dull, aching pain in her leg. Her mother told her it was a "growing pain," and tried to comfort her with the assurance that she was no doubt putting on inches of height. But the pains persisted and were often so violent that the child lay awake long hours suffering from them, and in the end probably lessened her growth because of nervous exhaustion from lack of sleep.

What former generations called "growing pains" were nothing more or less than rheumatism, and should have been treated with the care and attention which rheumatism and especially rheumatism in children always deserves.

Persistent "growing pains" generally mean that there is in the child a focus of infection which is spreading germs throughout his system . . . the result may be serious. St. Vitus' Dance or chorea, rheumatic fever, heart trouble are some of the possible even probable consequences.

A good momentary relief for "growing pains" is to wrap a woolen blanket or a piece of flannel about the aching member. The wool must be directly on the skin, for the friction of the rough wool stimulates the circulation and will ease the pain in a few minutes.

But such treatment is only palliative it does not touch the root of the trouble. The child should at once be taken to a doctor and examined thoroughly. He may have infected sinuses or tonsils and only a competent physician can diagnose and prescribe for the case. Whatever he advises should by all means be done, even if to the parents it seems extreme.

"Growing pains" are a danger signal and should not be ignored or lightly treated. Caught and cured in time they may not prove dangerous, but allowed to continue unchecked, they may be heralds of life-long misery.

History repeats itself, but nobody listens.

Sundown Stories

The Second Day

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE next morning Willy Nilly went over to the village for some adhesive tape, but on the way he stopped to see Quick-Dick, the old fire-horse, to visit him a bit. He became so interested talking to Quick-Dick and hearing all the news of how he and the other horses had spent Christmas, of the fine dinner they had had of hay with a rosy apple apiece for dessert, that he found it was getting late and that he had better return or he would not be in time for supper.

Somehow talking to Quick-Dick had made him very hungry.

"Did you go your adhesive tape?" the other asked as Willy Nilly came home.

"I'll get it tomorrow," he said. "I stopped to see Quick-Dick. He sent neighing greetings to all of you. I must tell you what he had to say." So Willy told them about his chat with Quick-Dick.

"Well," said Chrisopher, "our second day hasn't been quite as well-behaved and true to resolutions as our first day, but maybe we're a bit more natural."

"Nonsense," said Willy Nilly. "I'm going to get the adhesive tape tomorrow."

"To be sure," agreed Christopher, cocking his head to one side. "I'll be a little better behaved tomorrow than today but not quite as well behaved as I was yesterday."

"Why, Christopher, what did you do?" asked Willy Nilly.

"Nothing so very dreadful," crowed Christopher. "I'll tell you about it."

Toll of 15 Lives Over New Year's Holiday Reported in the State

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 2 (AP).—Automobile and coasting accidents took a toll of fifteen lives in New York state while New Year's celebrations marked the arrival of 1936 and the state legislature heard recommendations for highway safety legislation.

Lives of three young men were snuffed out near Saratoga Springs New Year's Day when their roadster crashed into the rear of a parked truck. A fourth may die. Dead are Joseph Baron, 20, of Greenfield Center; Alfred Eichorst, 16, of Middle grove; Frank Kubich, 15, of Greenfield. All three suffered fractures of the skull.

Injured are Michael Jankovich, 15, and his brother, John, 17, of Greenfield, reported near death with a broken back.

At Cranberry Lake Eleanor Earle, 9, and her brother, Alvery, 7, were drowned New Year's Eve when their sled shot down a hill and dropped into fifteen feet of water in a well.

Another New Year's Eve fatality occurred at Rochester when Harry H. Baker, Jr., aged 11, was crushed against the rear of his father's car when it was rammed by another. Young Baker was pushing the car after it failed to start.

At Norwich Marion L. Bryant, 34, died on New Year's Day from injuries received the night before when he was thrown from his car after a collision with another automobile.

At Dannemora, Mrs. Julia Joyall, 65, was fatally injured New Year's Day when struck by the automobile of Byron Kenyon.

Hit and run accidents accounted for two of the fifteen deaths. At Buffalo, Norman Guy Colton, 17, a junior in Kenmore High School, died yesterday shortly after he was found unconscious alongside a boulevard.

Near Herkimer, Mrs. Mildred Schiebel, 34, of Fort Herkimer, was killed New Year's Day while returning home from a party. State police had a broken door handle, a broken headlight lens and a description of the car as their only clues in the hunt for the driver.

At Utica, Mrs. Mabel Lago, 26, was killed and her husband was seriously injured in an auto accident early New Year's morning.

At Watervliet, Joseph Kroboth, 21, of Green Island was killed early yesterday when a bakery truck he was driving collided with an automobile.

Joseph Whalen, 38, of Cohoes, was killed early New Year's Day when his car was struck by one driven by Donald Williamson, 36, of Voorheesville. Whalen was pushing his own car, with his wife at the wheel, when it was struck in the rear.

At Buffalo, Charles F. Mark, 70, was killed while crossing a street.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Egyptian Women Long Ago Were Users of Cosmetics

The beautiful women of Egypt have been indulging in the use of cosmetics for at least 3,000 years. It may be that kohl and henna were in vogue for thousands of years before that, as well as the ointments, unguents and the coloring made from various herbs and vegetables, according to a writer in the Los Angeles Times. But we are certain that they were in vogue when King Tut was not a mummy.

In the Valley of the Kings where the Egyptian ruler had slept for 30 centuries, undisturbed, in his gold sarcophagus guarded by a giant cat, were the little alabaster jars containing the cosmetics he might need in his deathly peregrinations. The faint and musty perfume of antiquity still clung to the delicate jars of alabaster.

The art of personal decoration has not always been peculiar to women and sissies. The men of those far-off days cultivated curls and beards, anointed themselves and were arrayed in true masculine splendor.

Hunting Accidents Take Toll of Youth

A preliminary analysis of hunting accidents in the United States reveals that over eighty per cent of them are caused by the hunter himself or one of his hunting companions and nearly three times as many accidents have been caused by shotguns as by rifles, according to a statement by Professor Fay Welch of the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse, N. Y.

Summaries, which Professor Welsh has nearly completed, tend to make the comparative accident figures for the northern states high, particularly New York, Michigan, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania. This is because their hunting seasons opened earlier, in fact for several species of game the seasons are already over, while in the southern states they are just getting under way.

"The largest single cause of accidents apparently is failure on the part of hunters to properly identify the objects at which they are shooting," advises Professor Welch. "Men and boys have been killed and wounded this year through being mistaken for deer, squirrels, birds and groundhogs. Many needless accidents occur because of the habit of taking loaded guns into camps and buildings and through carrying loaded guns in automobiles. Falling and tripping and accidents incident to negotiating fences also account for a considerable number.

"Another unfortunate characteristic of these accidents is the extreme youthfulness of those who are killed, maimed for life and otherwise injured," says Professor Welch. "Over half of them are under twenty-two years of age and a number are twelve years or less.

"While in New York and other states the seasons for hunting deer, ruffed grouse and some other species of game are over, yet records show that numerous accidents occur, particularly to rabbit hunters, throughout December and January. Therefore, all hunters and others, who handle firearms, are urged to positively identify their game, keep track of their hunting companions, exercise extreme care in climbing over fences, brush piles, old logs and in crossing treacherous ground or ice, and to always unload guns before putting them in automobiles or bringing them into dwellings."

Professor Welch further states "accidents due to firearms cause approximately 3,150 fatal accidents each year, 157,500 injuries. Death from these accidents ranks sixth in importance and third among adolescents and that 31 percent of all eye accidents in the United States are due to misadventures with firearms."

FLATBUSH

Flatbush, Jan. 2—Schools closed Friday, December 20 for the Christmas holidays, with a splendid Christmas entertainment given by the pupils under the direction of Miss Phebe Cheshire and Miss Gladys Silkworth, teachers.

On Sunday evening the Sunday School of the Flatbush Reformed Church presented a beautiful pageant entitled "And the Angel Spoke." All the children took their parts remarkably well and much credit is due the Rev. Mr. Ryder, who directed the pageant.

Mrs. Ezra Hurn and daughter, Florence, are home for the holiday season.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dimmler, Jr., of Poughkeepsie and Mr. and Mrs. Harry France and daughter, Carol, were Christmas dinner guests at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Dimmler.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moak of Washington, D. C., were holiday guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Moak, and Mrs. Albert Meyers.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moak and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Parslow of Kingston were Christmas dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Anderson and family.

Miss Betty Ryder is home for the holiday vacation. Miss Betty attends Beaver College in New Jersey.

Miss Barbara Doll is spending the holidays with relatives in Brooklyn.

Joseph Emerick of North Bergen is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kukuk.

John Edinger was a Christmas dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kukuk.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen of Williston Park, L. I., were Christmas guests of Mrs. Allen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Klothe. Miss Gladys Klothe accompanied them home to spend the week in Williston Park.

A number of young folks gathered at the home of Miss Charlotte Edinger on December 26 to surprise her on her birthday. The young folks enjoyed an evening of playing games after which delicious refreshments were served. The guests departed in the early hours wishing Miss Charlotte many more happy birthdays. Those present were the Misses Mildred Davis, Wilma Jones, Carolyn Ryder, Helen Anderson, Virginia Edinger, Florence Pothemont and Charlotte Edinger and Breier Ducker and Joseph Emerick.

The Sunday school of the Flatbush Reformed Church held a covered dish supper and Christmas party Friday afternoon and evening. The children played games in the afternoon. After supper a delightful program was given under the direction of Miss Osterhoudt. Christmas carols were sung in Latin, French and German. Mrs. Elling told how Christmas was celebrated in Germany and had a display of German houses and statues and pictures used at Christmas in Germany. Mrs. Elling and her children, Elsa, Rudolf and Sonny sang several German Christmas songs. Three of the smallest girls, Joan Meyers, Shirley Swart and Florence Hurn recited and sang. At this time Santa appeared with a sack on his back and gave all the children a box of candy.

A number of the young folk enjoyed skating Saturday afternoon.

Instead of the usual Christian Endeavor meeting the members of the society attended the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer to witness the splendid Christmas pageant given by the young people of that church on Sunday, December 29.

PARADE OF MUMMERS WELCOMES NEW YEAR

Northwest Kansas counties are going back to sheep raising this winter, with many feeders using winter wheat pasture.

Federal-state frost warning service have been announced for 12 of central Florida's larger counties, with six others to be added.

It was estimated 35,000 persons in Florida were engaged in hunting during the season which opened November 20.

New Projects Approved

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 2 (AP).—Lester W. Herzog, upstate director of the Works Progress Administration, today announced approval of 35 additional work relief projects calling for an expenditure of $1,429,674.55. It included: Construction of a public waiting room and comfort station, $46,632.15, at Glen Cove, Nassau county.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetients for chronic constipation.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache caused by constipation — you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.—Adv.

Lotteries Problem Resurrected Today

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 2 (AP).—The long debated problem of lotteries to pay for unemployment relief is once again before the New York Legislature.

Senator Julius S. Berg, Bronx Democrat, dropped into the legislative hopper a bill designed to legalize lotteries in the state to raise funds for the jobless.

"I am convinced this is the only intelligent approach to our problem of relief," Senator Berg said.

Under the proposal, the state and any of its political subdivisions would be permitted to establish a plan whereby persons paying valuable consideration for a share or an interest in an association membership may be selected for appointment to positions in an exempt class of classified service consistent with the civil service law.

The salaries would be payable from fifty per cent of the revenues obtained under the plan, with the remaining fifty per cent appropriated for unemployment relief.

BUSHNELLVILLE.

Bushnellville, Jan. 2.—Ned Kelly from Allaben visited his brother, Avey Kelly, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley entertained their son and daughter from Newburgh over the week-end.

Mrs. Charles Frasier is entertaining a guest for a few days.

Miss Adelaide Van Valkenburgh is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Dunham during part of her vacation.

Harvey Kelly, Sunday.

Russell Ford and Merrill Dunham went sucker fishing in Lexington on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Newhall left Saturday for Catskill and will go to New York to spend New Year's with Mr. and Mrs. Roger Bowen.

He Lost His Pants.

Oklahoma City—Earl Herron, Oklahoma A. & M. College half-miler, couldn't run fast enough to keep his trousers. He lost a race with a burglar, evidently a sprinter, who made off with Herron's trousers and $6. Herron, however, was handicapped—wearing pajamas and no shoes.

Rain—No "Dust Bowl" Game.

Dodge City, Kas.—They didn't play that New Year's Day "dust bowl" football game—on account of rain, which wheat farmers agreed would benefit the needy more than the proceeds of the game; to have been played for charity.

Cheerful Public Service.

Nebraska City, Neb.—He explained he was too hazy to go around looking for a police station but the man who came to the city hall knew what he wanted: "I'm drunk and want to be locked up." City Employe Leo Wilcox steered him to jail.

Indoor Outdoor Work.

Niles Center, Ill.—Snow and freezing weather can't deprive Niles Center of its cut in the WPA funds allotted to Illinois. The townsfolk put up a circus tent over a 500,000 gallon reservoir construction project, put in electric lights and furnished stoves so 50 workmen could proceed.

Medieval Mongolia

In many respects Inner Mongolia is a "Land of the Middle Ages." Mongol horsemen lasso wild ponies with slip nooses on long poles, and a reception for the Dalai Lama attracts rainbow-hued, silk-robed princes across hundreds of miles of rolling plains. The Mongol chiefs prefer to live in felt yurts, or tents, as did their ancestors, and visitors of note are received not in permanent buildings, but in yurts which are entered through a window vestibule.

DEATH FOR SIX FEARED IN TENEMENT BLAST

Firemen are shown searching the ruins of a four-story tenement wrecked in Buffalo, N. Y., by a gas explosion. The toll was two dead, two missing and believed dead, and two reported dying in hospitals. The force of the blast ripped the end off an adjoining tenement and rocked the entire Italian quarter of the city. (Associated Press Photo)

Events Around The Empire State

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jan. 2 (AP).—Edward A. Cannon, 27, and Louis Abramsky, 28, both of Poughkeepsie, faced arraignment on manslaughter and rape charges respectively today in connection with the death of Miss Hilda Price, 20-year-old waitress, on New Year's Day.

The girl died of a fractured skull in Vassar Hospital, received, Cannon told police, when she fell from his car. District Attorney John Schwartz said Cannon told him they left the unconscious girl wrapped in a blanket in the rear seat of their car when they put it in a garage early New Year's morning. They returned six hours later, he said Cannon told him, to find the girl bleeding from the ears. They took her to a physician's office and then to the hospital, he said, where she died. Schwartz said the girl had been assaulted.

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 2 (AP).—Recommendations for state regulation to assure financial responsibility for all planes carrying passengers for hire were on record today—in Coroner Walter E. Healey's verdict that the crash of Ruth Nichols' airliner was an accident.

Capt. Harry Hublitz, Miss Nichols' pilot, was killed in the crash last October. Five, including Miss Nichols, were injured.

"I am of the opinion," the coroner said, "that there should be some proper regulations governing passenger flights which would be for the greater protection of those carried as passengers for hire and I do recommend that the subject of such proper regulations respecting the airplanes so used and the financial responsibility of the parties in charge, . . . of such flights be referred to the Legislature.

Coroner Healey held that Hublitz's death was caused by "an accident and not the result of any criminal negligence."

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 2 (AP).—Governor Herbert H. Lehman on New Year's Eve announced the following designations to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court:

First judicial department—Edward S. Dore, of New York city; associate justice for a five year term; Albert Cohn, of the Bronx, temporary associate justice if "an additional justice is needed."

Second department — John B. Johnston, of Brooklyn, and Frank F. Adel, of Kew Gardens, associated justices; George H. Taylor, Mt. Vernon, temporary associate justice.

Third department—Justice John C. Crapser, of Massena.

Fourth department—Justice Robert F. Thompson and Justice Harley N. Crosby.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 2 (AP).—Charles E. Manison, of Sherman, was under arrest today as the safe thief who successfully substituted advertising for "TNT" as a means of ingress to cash boxes.

State troopers who arrested him said Manison admitted stealing the safes from a feed store in Ripley and the Grange Federation office in Ellicottville in the last two weeks.

On each occasion a note was left behind urging the safe owners to publish the combination in a Buffalo paper to obviate the necessity of his treating the heavy safes roughly.

Broad Banking Laws Studied at Albany

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 2 (AP).—New York State's Legislature considered today a program to broaden the state's banking laws, and studied the statement by Charles H. Schoch, acting superintendent of banks, that general business recovery has been accompanied by a substantial improvement in banking conditions.

Schoch's proposal included measures to:

Provide that there shall be no liability upon holders of stock in corporations.

by banking corporations.

Permit issuance of preferred stock

Clarify the power of banks and trust companies to make loans of the so-called "small loan" law.

Extend to institutions outside New York city the restriction preventing banks and trust companies from lending, even where the security is given, an amount greater than 25 per cent of their capital and surplus to any one borrower.

Continue for an additional year the power of savings banks to invest in certain railroad securities, which as a result of depression do not meet the strict requirements of the banking law.

Permit safe deposit companies operated in conjunction with banks and trust companies to establish branches at any locations at which such branches are maintained by such banks and trust companies.

Lights of New York
by L. L. STEVENSON

Of all the cats that make their homes in Broadway theaters, Minnie, of the Winter Garden, is perhaps the best known. For two years her bad breaks, feats and exploits have been recited here and there. Usually, during performances, she takes up quarters in some remote part of the theater where she is safe from shifting scenery and the feet of hurrying actors. Nevertheless, she has had her moments. Once, she walked on during a "mood" song number and took a position down stage, center. With the attention of the audience centered on Minnie, the number was ruined. She has done even better—or worse, according to the viewpoint—than that. It was the time when, with a scene approaching its climax, she chased a dog across the stage. Thus, a cat stopped the show.

• • •

Minnie began her theatrical career at the ripe age of six weeks, her first appearance having been with the last Joe Cook show, "Hold Your Horses." Cook used her as a prop to fit into a little wine goblet. When she outgrew the goblet, she was adopted by the members of the Cook company and the stage hands. Rapidly she acquired tricks that endeared her to her associates. Through some unique sense of timing she would appear at the stage door at 8 a. m. and 2 p. m. on matinee days and settle herself at the door. As the performers came in, they stopped and caressed her. At 5:20 p. m. on matinee days and at 11:20 p. m. each evening, she was back again on the table for a bit of farewell petting.

Minnie is just as popular with members of the "At Home Aboard" company, and that brought her into the limelight again. On her second birthday, the various members of the cast took part in a party for her. It was a successful party except for one thing. Minnie drank so much cream that she was too sick to purr for two days. But the theater motto, "The show must go on" was so firmly ingrained in her that she didn't miss any stage door appearances.

Remaining in the Winter Garden a bit longer, there was the unique situation of union stage hands fighting among themselves to do extra work that carries with it no extra pay! In one number, Beatrice Lillie is perched on a little seat about nine feet above the stage level. There is no time for a ladder to be placed under her perch after the completion of her number, so it is necessary for some strong man of the back stage crew to catch Lady Peel when she jumps. Eddie Dowling, stage director, volunteered for the job but the union men refused permission on the ground it was "striking" that particular set. Finally Jack Mears, the property man, won out on the ground that Miss Lillie is a piece of property, so it was his job to remove her from the set.

Possibly, I'm theater-minded today, but there is that matter of programs, especially those of musical shows with many numbers. In order to keep track of what's going on, careless customers use cigarette lighters, which is against the fire laws and dangerous, while the sight of flickering flames here and there in a darkened theater is not reassuring to the timid, to say the least. Now I'm wondering if the problem couldn't be solved by supplying the programs when the tickets are bought, thus giving a chance for advance perusal.

Although Irvin Cobb was a newspaper man for years and is a master of the typewriter, he is still a gentleman of the old school to the extent that he writes all his personal letters in long hand. Despite those years of taking notes, his handwriting is remarkably legible and, of course, the contents of those letters are extremely entertaining.

Elephant Makes Little of Mighty Large Job

East Orange, N. J.—An elephant—the kind that never forgets—obligingly shifted its weight in an overturned truck until it had righted the vehicle, and then went for a walk through town.

Its name is "No-Name" and it was being moved to a circus' winter quarters in New York when the truck capsized. No-Name weighs 8,700 pounds and the truck might have been by the side of the road yet if No-Name had not rolled over and brought it upright again.

The accident broke No-Name's chains and he ambled down the street. He paused once to snatch a box of prepared toast from a woman's hand, swallowed both toast and box. Then he wandered through a wide door into a garage and settled down for the night next to an automobile.

U. S. Hospitals Need More Pretty Nurses

San Francisco.—Pretty nurses are needed in hospitals throughout the country. "Pretty nurses are a joy to any institution," declared Miss Carolyn F. Davis, superintendent of the Good Samaritan hospital in Portland, Ore., at a convention here. "Health, vitality, cheerfulness are essential. These constitute beauty. Patients react favorably to such things."

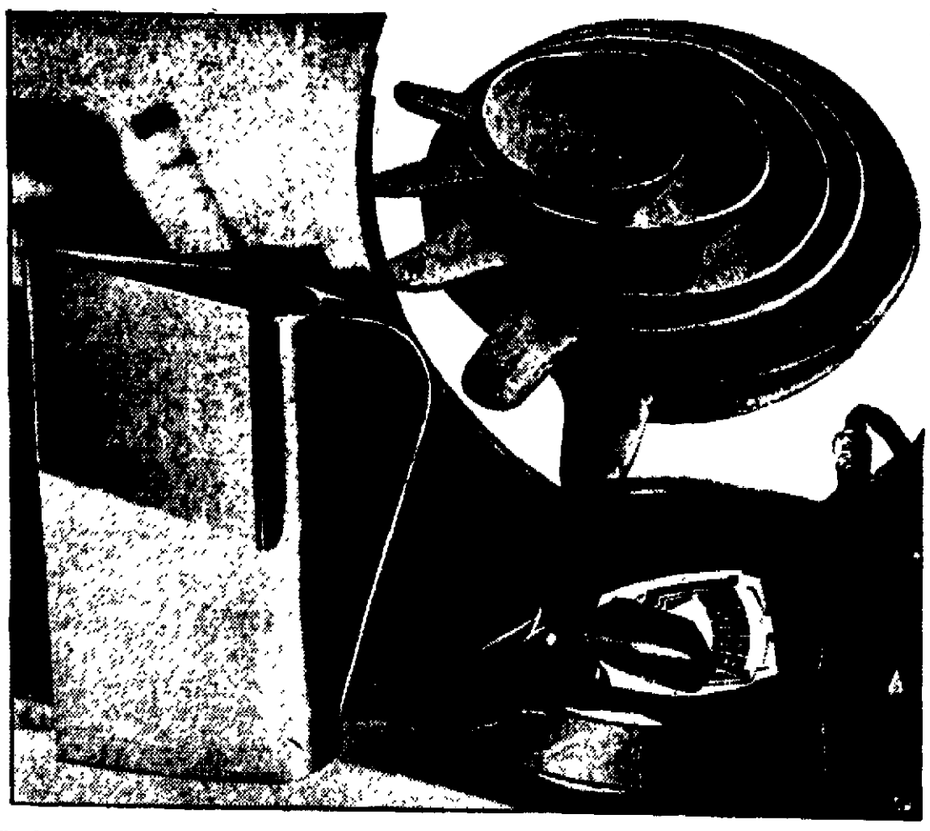
Sleek New Houseware Has Beauty And Promises To Simplify Work



The Normandie's funnels inspired the modernistic water pitcher above, showing how beauty and utility are combined in the latest household necessities. The frying pans at upper right are of Mexican pottery instead of metal, and they come in all colors. The streamlined electric iron below, has a heat control designed for absent-minded housewives. It is gauged to correct ironing heats for linen, cotton, wool and silk. These articles will be shown at the international housewares show in the Chicago Merchandise mart January 6-18.

Chicago (AP)—Frying pans of Mexican pottery and porcelain electric toasters will make their bow to the housewife with a vast company of improved mechanical appliances and gadgets at the first international housewares show in the Merchandise mart here from January 6 to 18.

Designed—with an eye to beauty—to remove hard work from most household duties, these contrivances are to be exhibited by more than 300 manufacturers.

No room of the home has been overlooked in the campaign to make living more enjoyable. The search for attractiveness has been extended even to the most prosaic pots and pans. The pottery and porcelain substitutes for metal cooking dishes will have a prominent place. This group includes coffee makers and grill of decorative pottery suitable for the dining table.

Stove Works Unattended.

An electric stove which may be left for hours while a meal is being prepared will be demonstrated.

One of the newest wrinkles in air conditioning, a tent-bed, will be shown. It is said to combine all the comforts of sleeping in your own bed with the thrills of a camping expedition. The outfit consists of a tent-like canopy which may be removed easily for access to the bed. Nearby is a separate unit which filters and humidifies the air and assures a constant temperature.

FHA Takes Exhibit Space.

Interest in the show has developed to such an extent that the federal housing administration has ordered a large exhibit space set aside to demonstrate its function as an "intermediary" between merchant and consumer in the buying and selling of major household appliances.

Henry A. Guthrie, chief of the FHA exhibits section, says the government is endeavoring to cooperate further with business men and merchants by having FHA representatives working in department stores as "coordinators."

Their duties, says Guthrie, would be to make both merchant and consumer more cognizant of the help the federal housing administration can render the public in underwriting transactions involving major home furnishing equipment.

Reich postoffice figures show that 8,700 newspapers are being published in Germany today while 11,300 were printed in 1933. The number of daily copies sent through the mails has shrunk from 1,400,000 to a round million.

SAVE BY MAKING KIDDIE'S FROCK AT HOME—SAYS MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9746.

Mothers find it an additional saving to make little daughter's frocks at home when a dress pattern, such as this, includes a pattern for bloomers, as well. The frock's adorable in itself, and contains a grand work-saving feature—that of cutting its sleeves and yoke all in one piece. Therefore, a mother who's never before attempted a frock for her youngster, will find this a particularly easy style with which to begin. Theres' little-girl simplicity in a skirt which hangs unbelted, and lots of room for action in those three inverted pleats. The polka-dot print that's sketched today may be of any of the color-fast cottons—broadcloth, persale, pique, or a printed challis. Complete, Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9746 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires 2¾ yards 36 inch fabric.

Russian Concert for Needy Children

In conjunction with the Russian tea and bridge sponsored by the School Welfare Work Committee for the benefit of needy school children, it has been announced that the program will include Kingston's leading artists in violin, piano and voice. This concert, comprised of Russian classics and other compositions often given before the royalty at the former Russian Imperial Court, will be wholly reincarnated at the residence especially donated for this occasion by Mrs. Mary Melik, at 30 South Clinton avenue, tomorrow afternoon, beginning 2:30 o'clock.

The artists exclusively selected for the concert are: Florence Cubberly, violinist; Henry Hartmann, pianist; Zaven Melik, baritone, and Ruth Scott, commentator.

Mrs. Cubberly, who will play four numbers in two separate groups, is widely known in Kingston. After her studies at the Institute of Musical Art in New York, she was a pupil of Edouard Dethier, the Belgian violinist, and later a personal pupil of the world famous Franz Kneisel, prior to his death, regarded as the leading violin teacher in New York and available to exceptionally gifted, advanced students. Her program for tomorrow afternoon will include:

(I) Hindu Chant, from "Sadko" ..... Rimsky-Korsakoff
(II) Song Without Words, ... Tchaikovsky
(III) Viennese Melody..... Kreisler
(IV) Consonetta ..... d'Ambrosio

The distinguished pianist, Henry Hartmann, who now resides in Blomington, has been a pupil of the renowned Virgil and later of Goldmark. In his early career, Mr. Hartmann holds an enviable record as the accompanist and coach for the world famous prima donnas, Mmes. Sundelius, Nielssen and Mabel Garrison. Mr. Hartmann has for many years been associated with Ziegfeld, Erlanger, Viktor Kolar, Cesare Sodero and others. As a cellist he has been with the Metropolitan Opera orchestra; has played under the scrupulous direction of Arturo Toscanini and two seasons under Gustav Mahler. He will play at tomorrow's recital:

(I) Polonaise in C Sharp Minor, Op. 26, No. 1 ..... Chopin
(II) Automne, Op. 35, No. 2 ..... Chaminade

Zaven Melik's songs have long been associated with Kingston and often heard in concerts, especially, pertaining to hospitals, child welfares and many other benevolent organizations, as well as private recitals in prominent homes of New York, Boston and Philadelphia. He has been a pupil of Salvatore Avitabile, the coach of Marion Talley, Pompilio Malatesta, basso of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and at the present time is a personal pupil of the celebrated baritone, Max Panteleieff, regarded as the leading Russian singer in America. Among the personalities who have heard Zaven Melik's voice are: Feodor Challapin, Dr. John H. Finley, Juliana Force, George Blumenthal, Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, Mrs. John Breckinridge, Cass Gilbert, Dr. William Henry Welsh, Jonas Lie, the Hon. H. W. Watrous, Prof. Frank Jewett Mather, Herbert Winlock, the Hon. Fiorello LaGuardia, Fannie Hurst, the late Otto H. Kahn. His Russian program tomorrow afternoon includes the favorite chant of the Volga bargemen, dedicated to School No. 5. The remainder of the program includes arias and songs never before sung by the baritone in Kingston:

(I) Napoleon's Midnight Review (in Russian) ..... Glinka
(II) Mefistophele's Aria (in Russian) ..... Mussorgsky
(III) The Driver ..... Traditional

Ruth Scott, the afternoon's commentator, is a graduate of Kingston High School and received her degree of Bachelor of Music from Syracuse University in 1925. For one year Miss Scott has been organist at the Rondout Presbyterian Church and for two years held the position as accompanist for the National Park Seminary at Washington, D. C. She has continued further studies of piano in Washington under Henry Kaspar and organ with Ralph Kinder in Philadelphia, and is now working toward an advanced degree in musicology at the Eastman School of Music of Columbia University. Though now an instructor in music of St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, N. J., Miss Scott is ever interested in all musical activities of Kingston, generously giving her gift of explaining to the audiences, meanings of musical compositions and certain passages that intensify the hearers' interest and the love for the beautiful in music.

For reservations telephone communications may be made with Mrs. William F. Donovan and Mrs. George Magley.

Lehman's Proposals For Safety on Highway

Albany, N. Y., Jan 2 (AP)—Governor Lehman told the incoming 1936 legislature that unless highways are quickly made safer in New York state he will favor mechanical limitation of automobile speed.

The Governor recommended a seven-point program to reduce traffic accidents. Although he said he was not now ready to accept engine speed control as the only solution, he gave this warning:

"Unless corrective results are rapidly obtained from the program I am submitting to you, I would favor the mechanical and automatic control and limitation of speed."

His seven-point program proposes: Thorough tests for new drivers, and elimination of unsafe drivers; heavier punishment for repeating offenders.

Increased highway patrol.

Compulsory inspection of motor vehicles.

Fifty-mile speed limit.

Consideration by the board of regents of the teaching of safety as part of the regular school curriculum.

Creation of a highway commission, with authority to investigate accidents and coordinate efforting toward safer travel.

Regulation of "billboards, structures and varied contraptions, purposely devised to attract the attention of the driver."

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Self-analysis by Lionel Stander, 27, whose croaking voice, wild hair and clothes, and striking physiognomy threaten to enliven many more movies:

"Here's the headline, yeah. 'Leading exponent of masculine pulchritude graces screen at last.' I was a newspaper man myself until I got fired. I've got fired from every job I ever had, so I'm an actor. I'm in Hollywood because it's the last stronghold of the American dream—rags to riches overnight. For some people. Yeah, but other people, not me.

"I got tired of being just one of the army of the unemployed. When you're an actor you're just 'at liberty' if you're out of a job. That's another reason I'm one. It's more dignified.

In Army At 15

"I'm the black sheep of the family. I was a Greenwich Village bum for three years. Jobs I've had? Name it and I've done it. I was in the army at 15—my father snatched me out in four months. Truck driver, tile-setter's helper, reporter, fighter. Went to four universities, less than a year each. New York U., Penn—that doesn't count because I left right away—Duke, and North Carolina.

"Acted some for the Carolina playmakers. My first show—professional — I played a crap-shooter.

"I signed up for pictures to do 'Hooray for Love' but Ben Hecht and Charlie MacArthur asked for me to do 'The Scoundrel' first. It did me more good than the picture I signed for. My last stinkeroo" (his designation for any picture) "was 'Rolling Along.' Next is 'Opera Hat.' I go through the whole picture. Think of it—they can't cut me out anywhere. Stupendous.

First Job

"First job I ever had—I was 14—was a messenger boy's. I lost $147,000 worth of negotiable securities. Oh, they found it four days later. Some honest guy picked up the envelope, which was addressed, and put stamps on it. Oh, yes, they fired me.

"I'm a practical guy now. I've got a manager who gives me so much to spend and keeps the rest. I know this won't last. It never does, for actors. You're not like a business man, lawyer, doctor who keeps on earning. With us it's get-what-you-can while-you-can. . . .

"I was with the Theater Guild once . . . devoting myself to the higher things of the theater . . . and starving to death. . . .

"Say—I'm so used to being broke that every time I put my hand in my pocket and find any money my face breaks out in a sweet, wide, amazed smile of delight!"

THOUSANDS GREET NEW YEAR AT TIMES SQUARE

Here are some of the massed thousands who packed Times Square to welcome the new year in typical New York manner on the stroke of midnight. Despite hundreds of extra police traffic through the midtown area moved at a snail's pace for hours during the celebration. Crowd was noisy but orderly. (Associated Press Photo)

German soldiers contributed $55,785 to Nazi winter relief funds.

Stop SAYING "NO" TO FAVORITE FOODS

IT isn't only pie that disagrees with some people. Many say that even milk gives them a gassy stomach. The very best foods may bring on acid indigestion, sour stomach, gas, heartburn. Millions have found that Tums quickly relieve acid indigestion. Munch 3 or 4 after meals or whenever smoking, hasty eating, last night's party, or some other cause brings on acid indigestion. Tums contain no harsh alkalies, which physicians have said may increase the tendency toward acid indigestion. Instead an antacid which neutralizes stomach acid, but never over-alkalizes the stomach or blood. You'll like their minty taste. Only 10c.

Broadway: "A Night At The Opera". The Marx Brothers, now cut down to three under the universal economic stress of the times, contribute a comedy offering at the Broadway that will probably be the finest laugh production until the arrival of Charlie Chaplin's new picture. This Marx Brothers riot of fun is really swell entertainment because it is paced at amazing speed and the gags and jokes are new and fairly sparkle in their originality. Much of the show's success is due to the efforts of George Kaufman and Morris Ryskind, who have become famous on the legitimate stage for their many comedy successes. They have built up a story that grows so funny it almost brings tears. Each of the Marx's seems better adapted to his special talent than in any previous picture and all of them bustle through a plot that centers around the efforts of several men to make a young man an opera singer. The stage antics of the Marx's at the opera is a model of laugh perfection. Kitty Carlisle is very appealing as the girl and Allan Jones, the young singer of the story, proves to be a valuable screen find with a nice voice. The show is a star studded comedy riot, one of the best pictures of this or any other season.

Orpheum: "Dance Band". The once juvenile hero of the screen turns to more mature matters in the Orpheum saga of present day sophistication and Buddy Rogers, now known as Charles Rogers, goes through the ordeals of being a dance band maestro in a field highly competitive at the present time. The story centers around a young man with his dreams of having a big time dance band and he gets it after a multitude of struggles. Mr. Rogers is a talented musician and somewhat of an actor and the show is a tuneful and entertaining bit of screen fare. The dances are well arranged and the songs are neatly played. June Clyde is also in the cast.

Kingston: "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo". The show at the Kingston has the distinction of possessing the longest title ever handed a talkie and that isn't all. It also has Ronald Colman and when a show can offer that, it is a success before it even starts to unwind in the projection room. For Mr. Colman is just about the top artist among the male leading men in Hollywood and this picture, although melodramatic and a little too suave, is grand entertainment as it tells of a gambler who wasn't afraid to bet all against the turn of fate, whether at the tables or playing with life. An appealing love story has been written into the action and Joan Bennett does nicely as the girl in the story. The show has moments of rare excitement, some well played comedy and the usual lavishness of a Daddyl E. Zanuck production. Supporting the capable Mr. Colman are Colin Clive and Nigel Bruce. Selected short features complete the festivities.

Pomona At Clintondale.

The Ulster County Pomona Grange met for its regular December meeting at the Clintondale Grange Hall, in Clintondale recently. The morning session was duly opened in the Fifth Degree by Worthy Pomona Master Harold V. Story. The opening song was "Oh Little Town of Bethlehem."

Worthy Master Story introduced the Worthy State Lecturer, Sister Stella Miller, who was present to install the new officers. Sister Miller responded with a few words saying more would be heard from her later. She said she was just a Grange worker, whose whole heart and soul was in the work of the Grange.

Brother Francis Gaffney was elected treasurer in place of Brother J. Harold Clark, whose resignation was accepted with regret.

Sister Marie L. Lachman was elected Flora in place of Sister Mildred Ducker, whose resignation was also accepted with regret.

Sister Ethel Jenkins, the Worthy Lecturer, gave a splendid report of her work and thanked the officers and members for their hearty and loyal cooperation. She spoke of the beautiful degree work done, with Brother I. C. Barnes as master of the degree team. The Prize Speaking Contest each year has been one of the greatest accomplishments. Pomona Grange instituted the Visitation Meetings.

Through the efforts of the Worthy Lecteurer, the "Master's and Lecturer's Association was organized three years ago. Three books have been purchased for the Grange library: "Handy" numbers I and II and "Good Times for All Times."

Blue Ribbons have been won for five years by the worthy lecturer.

Worthy Master Story thanked Sister Jenkins in behalf of the Grange for her untiring efforts and splendid work as the Pomona Lecturer.

A motion was carried that the lecturer's "Ribbons" be framed and passed on to each succeeding lecturer, to be displayed at each Pomona meeting.

Fine reports of the State Grange sessions held at Oneonta the week of December 9 were given by the following delegates: Brother Albert Kurdt, who was delegate-at-large, Brother Lenard Ruckert of Mt Tremper Grange, Sister Hoff of Asbury Grange, Sister Hallock of Milton Grange, Sister Bell of Highland Grange, and Brother I. C. Barnes of Huguenot Grange.

Over 4,000 attended the State Grange session and 943 were new candidates.

Brother J. Wells Weaver was elected president of the New York State Deputies Association, and Sister Beatrice Everett is now chairman of the state service and hospitality committee. Ulster County Pomona Grange is proud to have these honors come to its members.

After a delicious luncheon served by the ladies of Clintondale social and hospitality committee, the afternoon session was opened in the fourth degree with singing the old Christmas hymn, "Silent Night."

The worthy secretary, Mary B. Brink, read the reports from the Granges. All report many activities and social good times.

Huguenot Grange reported having had a fall fair and exhibit and realized $80. The S. and H. Com earned $503 from dances and suppers during the year. Have 29 Silver Star members, two of which are charter members.

Clintondale Grange reported that new officers have been installed with a goodly attendance of members present. They received $125 premium from the state fair for Clintondale exhibit, also won prize at the county fair.

Stone Ridge Grange reported splendid programs during the last quarter. Had a dart baseball contest with Patroon Grange and a domino party. "Boosters' night" celebration was a big success.

Plattekill Grange reported that Highland Grange brought them the "Traveling Album" and presented a most interesting program. The S. & H. Com. has been very active sponsoring card parties, etc. They financed the installation of two new sinks in the kitchen. Installation of officers was held on December 14. Wilson Edmunds was re-elected master.

Highland Grange reported card parties, suppers and dances which were all successful. Go-to-church Sunday was observed. Have a class of seven candidates to be initiated.

Lake Katrine Grange reported committees all working hard holding card parties and dances. Grange held a flower show and supper which was a success. Had annual Grange picnic. Two applications for membership on file. Donated use of hall to school and Sunday School. Sent Christmas donations to Camp Happyland and Red Cross and the Salvation Army. Lecture hours very interesting. Grange orchestra played several selections and also for dancing after the meeting.

Patroon Grange reported the social and hospitality committee sponsored a series of card parties. A supper was served for the rural mail carriers. Artificial fruit and flowers were bought for the Graces. Flowers were sent to the sick. "Booster night" was observed and was a grand success.

Asbury Grange reported attendance on the upward trend and meetings very interesting.

Milton Grange reported meetings well attended and most interesting. Had quite a few visitors present during the past quarter and hope to add new members to their roll.

year's at the spring, and the day's at the morn;

lark's on the wing; the snail's on the thorn;
d's in His heaven—all's right with the world!

Man—your suit begins to look a little rusty.
Friend—Well, the merchant who sold it to me told me it would wear like iron.

The trouble is that a man too often shows his worst side to his better half.

Agnes—So you are her sixth husband. Does she like you any better than she did the others?
Ted—Yes, she seems to think the world and all of me, but I think she is getting sort of restless for another wedding.

A good man is one whose conduct is governed by conscience rather than by discretion.

Now is the time to keep your courage bright. 'Tis always darkest just before the light!

We recently found a man who admitted he's not trying to leave footprints on the sands of time, being more interested in covering up a lot of those already made.

The New Year's Chimes.

Hark! the bells of New Year ringing, on the starry midnight calm,
Low as hushed as angels singing, now like some triumphant psalm,
Over hill and stream and valley, soft the sounds celestial steal—
Now they pause, and now they rally, burst on burst, and peal on peal.
Hark! the bells of New Year chiming, "Peace, good will," they whisper low.
Then, exultant, as if climbing up to Heav'n's own gate, they go
Till the air rocks with the ringing, swings the steeple, swings the sky,
Sing the stars themselves—all singing "Glory be to God on high."

After the bills for Christmas start rolling in, poor old father begins to wonder which got the best trimming —the or the Christmas tree.

Wifey—If it wasn't for me you would be the biggest fool in the show business.
Hubby—How does it feel to head the list?

Modern incentive: Work hard, save, and you can give most of it to the tax collector.

Young Son—What are diplomatic relations, daddy dear?
Daddy Dear—There are no such people, my boy.

A task seems easier to do when you have well begun it. Just brace up and begin it, then, the first you know, you've done it.

Chief Accountant—There's $2 missing from the cash drawer and no one but you and I have a key to it.
Cashier—Well, let's each put a dollar back and forget it.

There was a young fellow named Pratt,

"Well, I sure got a kick out of that!"

Wicks' Bill Would Abolish the TERA

Albany, Jan. 2.—At the opening of the session Senator Arthur H. Wicks, of Kingston, introduced a measure to abolish the Temporary Emergency Relief Administration and transfer the work of this organization to the department of social welfare.

This measure was advocated last year by Wicks when the TERA was about to expire, but on request from the Governor, Wicks sponsored a bill to extend the TERA for another year.

In his annual message Governor Lehman advocated a change similar to the provisions contained in Senator Wicks' new bill which he introduced prior to the reading of the executive message.

This new measure has been referred to the Committee of Public Relief and Welfare.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JAGGER

New York, Jan. 2 (AP).—The stock market took its first look at 1936 today with moderate cheerfulness. Although traders called their shots carefully, and many were not adverse to raking in some of their profits, the list, as a whole, gave a fairly good account of itself.

Wheat rallied at Chicago and cotton improved. Bonds were rather firm. The gold currencies were lower in terms of the dollar.

The activity in shares was not pronounced after the opening. Among issues advancing as much as 2 or more points, were Goodyear, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Seaboard Oil, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Telephone, Union Pacific, U. S. Pipe & Foundry, Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, Paramount Second and First Preferreds, Loew's and Boeing. On the down side up to a point or so were Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Sperry, Curtiss-Wright "A", Western Union, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Chrysler, General Motors, Woolworth and National Distillers.

The Yucca Plant

Yuccas are strangely dependent for continuation upon artificial pollination, the pollen never becoming dusty as in the case of other flowers. It is a thick gummy mass scraped into small globules by a night-flying female moth. She flies with the pollen to another plant and thrusts it down the stigmatic tube of a floker, thus effecting cross-pollination. She then thrusts her ovipositor into the ovary at the base of the flower and therein deposits her eggs. These hatch into worms, or grubs, and feed upon the seeds that, except for her act, never would have been. Less than one-half of the seeds are eaten and some of the remainder continue the race of yuccas, though some are devoured by desert rodents. But perpetuation of the plants is entirely dependent upon the moth.

Mystery Springs in Queensland

Fifty miles southeast of Boulia township, in the far west of Queensland, are two mystery springs. One, known as Elizabeth spring, consists of a circular hole four or five fet in diameter in which tepid water is continually bubbling up and overflowing. The water, which is perfectly clear, is peculiar in that the human body cannot sink in it owing solely to the force of the water bubbling up from below. About 50 yards away is another called Lubra spring. Its water is always icy cold and is jet black. The human body sinks like a stone in it. According to the aborigines of the locality, the water in this spring turned black ages ago when a lubra (native woman) jumped into it and was never seen again.

Discovered South Africa

The early Portuguese navigators were the first to reach the vicinity of South Africa. In 1486 Bartholomew Diaz rounded the Cape of Good Hope, and 11 years later Vasco de Gama made the same voyage. The first vessels to anchor in Table bay were those of the expedition headed by Cornelius Houtman, a Dutchman, in 1595. In 1648 a Dutch ship was wrecked in Table bay and all on board safely reached land. They remained there five months until the next vessel arrived. This was the beginning of the idea of colonizing the country. The pioneer settlers in Cape Colony arrived in three Dutch ships on April 7, 1652.

SCIENTISTS STUDY RADIATION OF SUN

Secret of Ray's Effect on Life Is Sought

Tucson, Ariz. — Scientists have launched here an expedition into mysterious worlds of sunshine which may revolutionize business and agriculture.

For one year, the rays of the sun, which obviously affect every human being and virtually every field of work, will be mapped daily at three experimental stations, one at the University of Arizona, another at the Arizona State Teachers' college and the third at Hermosillo, Mexico, writes Gordon Gordon in the Chicago Herald-Examiner.

Dr. L. F. Miller of the University of Minnesota is conducting the tests, the most extensive ever undertaken in the study of the sun by science. He will use a highly-sensitive instrument which he recently perfected and which records on charts every factor which influences the rays of the sun, such as the passage of invisible clouds, conditions in the stratosphere, atmospheric pressure different types of clouds, temperature and humidity.

Many Groups Aid.

Financed by the Rockefeller Foundation, many scientific groups throughout the world are aiding in the undertaking, including the Guggenheim Airship Research Institute, the Air Ministry of Great Britain, the United States Weather bureau, and the pineapple industry of Hawaii.

"Every living particle of life is affected by the sun's radiation," Doctor Miller pointed out. "If we can discover just the factors controlling those rays, whether in the sun itself or in the stratosphere or in the clouds, we could benefit mankind in a thousand ways.

"A thorough knowledge of the sun's radiation might make possible control over the vital vitamins in foods, the proper growth of all plants, curative and preventive treatments in medicine, the deterioration of materials in buildings and bridges and the coatings of those structures, visibility in flying, and long-range weather forecasting. The benefits are seemingly without number."

Instrument Sensitive.

Doctor Miller's instrument, which many scientists believe will provide the key to the secrets of the rays, consists of a hollow sphere which is set in a highly-evacuated quartz bulb.

"This is placed on the top of an observatory or other high point," he explains. "It is connected with a cable to a recorder in a laboratory below. As the temperature varies with changes of the intensity of the solar variation, a thermo couple measures and transmits the values to the laboratory. It is so sensitive that it records clouds which can't be seen with the naked eye and it is able to differentiate between every type of cloud.

Find Way to Take Pain Out of Tooth Drilling

New York.—Finding at last of a substance which makes the dentist's drill a painless instrument was announced here by Columbia university.

The new substance, which, it was stated, will materially affect the practice of dentistry, was discovered after twenty years of research by Dr. Leroy L. Hartman, professor of dentistry. The substance, described as a "desensitizer," as yet without an official name, is a solution applied to the surface of the tooth. It not only prevents pain, it was stated, "but offers the possibility of saving teeth now lost through extraction."

The desensitizer, Doctor Hartman revealed, is based on a new theory of pain and the recognition of a previously unknown substance in the dentine of the teeth. The price of the chemical will be controled by the university to make it available to all.

Mother Sent 6,000 Notes by Her Son Since 1919

Wilmington, Ohio.—Sixteen years ago, when John Wilson left his home here for California, he told his mother, Mrs. Carey A. Wilson, that he'd "write often."

Today, Mrs. Wilson, now eighty, can look through her cherished collection of nearly 6,000 postcards and see that he has kept his promise.

Every day that John has been away from his parents, he has written a postcard. He is forty-eight now. The flow of mail was stopped only at short intervals when he has returned for a visit or when Mr. and Mrs. Wilson have visited with their son in the West.

Mondays bring two cards, as no mail is delivered on Sundays. The cards are always of some spot or building he has viewed during the day.

False Teeth Extracted; "Sore Throat" Is Cured

Pueblo, Colo.—P. W. Danielson, sixty-three years old, is free from a "sore throat" and again the possessor of his false teeth.

Danielson's "throat trouble" began some days ago when he wakened from a nap. Swallowing became so painful he refused to eat. Doctors were puzzled.

The elderly man's hunger overcame his disinclination to swallow, but he couldn't find his false teeth, a full lower plate. When a thorough search of the house failed to reveal them someone suggested he might have swallowed them. An X-ray revealed the plate lodged in the esophagus. It was removed.

Junior Auxiliary Tea Delightful Affair

The New Year's Tea Dance of the Junior Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital, held at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Wednesday afternoon, was one of the delightful social events of the season and opened the New Year in a most happy fashion. The lounge of the hotel presented a charming picture with its Christmas tree, silver trimmed and lighted, its Christmas wreaths and its handsomely appointed tea table. Even more charming was the picture presented by the happy-faced young people gathered to enjoy the dancing held in the Crystal room, where boxes of sansaveri formed a screen for Larry LaRochelle of Golden Rule Inn and his orchestra which discoursed inviting dance music.

This year the entire affair was in charge of the members of the Junior Auxiliary, Miss Margaret Mullen, president, Miss Marion Farrell, vice-president, Miss Dorothy O'Meara, secretary, and Miss Frances Finn, treasurer. Miss Virginia Mullen was chairman of activities, especially of the Tea Dance.

The centerpiece of the tea table presided over by Mrs. James A. Dwyer, Mrs. Charles O'Reilly, Mrs. Edwin O'Reilly and Mrs. John N. Cordts, Jr., was a mound of poinsettias and foliage, with red lighted candles in silver candlesticks.

Delicious tea, and sandwiches and cake were served by the members of the Junior Auxiliary, to the many, many guests present. The generous patronage of the Tea Dance will assure the Junior Auxiliary of a nice sum of money to add to their funds for the furthering of their charitable work carried on in the Baby Ward of the Benedictine Hospital.

The members of the Junior Auxiliary are to be congratulated upon the success of the affair.

WPA Arranges First Aid Course for Boys

The National Re-employment Service in the city hall received word today that the Works Progress Administration was arranging for a course in first aid for boys between the ages of 18 and 25 years, who are members of families that have been certified for relief here. The boys to take the course will be selected by the NRS.

The course will consist of a series of eight lessons, and at the close the boys will be examined and those who pass will be given certificates. They will then be appointed to WPA work projects and will work one-third time for one-third the pay received by the regular WPA worker.

The idea back of the plan is to help families whose members are employed by the WPA but who do not make enough money to support their families and have to also receive aid from the ERB.

Dance at St. John's.

This dance may be an annual affair if it is well supported tonight. Each member of the parish, and any others interested are asked to make a special effort to attend.

Kripplebush Store Destroyed by Fire

The general store of John Smith at Kripplebush was completely destroyed by fire which was discovered about 2 o'clock this morning. The store and two adjacent barns were burned to the ground but the residence across the street was saved. Members of the High Falls fire department were summoned to the scene and found the water in the small creek insufficient to cope with the blaze, however the firemen were able to save the house. Twelve cows in the barns were removed to safety but the stock in the store and machinery in the barns were lost. Insurance was carried in the Olive Co-operative Fire Association.

Three Killed in Auto Fatalities in City in 1935; 195 Injured

Three people met death in Kingston during 1935 as the result of auto accidents, while 195 people were injured, more or less seriously, the records of the police department show. All three deaths occurred during the month of November.

The first fatality was the death of David, 3 year old son of Harold Olson of Ten Broeck avenue, who was knocked down and fatally injured by a truck near his home. This was on November 1.

The second death occurred on the Beatty turn on Hurley avenue, when Morris Kruger, 31, of Woodridge, was fatally injured when the car he was riding in failed to make the curve in the road and crashed into a pole. The car caught fire and was destroyed. Kruger died in the hospital. The accident occurred on November 15.

On November 17, Mrs John F. Edwards of Elizabeth street was fatally injured when the car she was riding in was struck by a milk truck on Washington avenue.

Nine accidents were reported in which pedestrians were struck by cars, but none were fatally injured. Other accidents in which boys were injured were caused when bicycles were struck by cars and boys on sleds, sleighriding were injured.

Two Persons Hurt In New Year Crashes

When he visited the sheriff's office New Year's Day, Sergeant John Lockhart of Highland reported that he and his associate, State Trooper Lynn Baker, investigated two accidents, one on the eve of the holiday and the other early New Year's morning.

The accident Tuesday night about 10:30 took place about two miles outside of New Paltz on the road between that village and Highland and involved the Chrysler sedan of Walter Margrof, manager of the Clintondale Fruit Growers, Inc., and the Dodge truck of Melvin Sammons of Pine Bush.

Sergeant Lockhart said Margrof's tongue was almost severed when he bit it as the cars collided, but other than this no injuries were reported. Both cars were damaged considerably.

In reporting to the troopers, Sammons said that the headlights of approaching cars shining on his windshield, which was somewhat obstructed by frost, blinded him.

There were no arrests.

The New Year's accident caused painful injury to John B. Whitaker, 23, of 58 Harwich street, Kingston. His left eye was cut by broken glass and was badly swollen, and his chest was bruised. Whitaker preferred a charge of reckless driving against Antonio J. Arrigo, 29, of the Bronx who was driving a Chrysler coupe. His hearing will be Monday at 2 p. m. before Justice John Rusk of Highland.

When Sergeant Lockhart arrived to investigate at 4:50 a. m. both cars were "cross-ways" in the middle of the road, he said, and apparently were badly damaged. Whitaker's car is a Ford roadster.

McMILLAN GIVES MOST CREDIT TO STANFORD ENDS.

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 2 (AP).—Alvin (Bo) McMillan, who ought to know, attributed Stanford's 7 to 0 victory over Southern Methodist to its brilliant ends—Monk Moscrip and Keith Topping.

McMillan, football coach at Indiana, and a life-long friend of Coach Matty Bell of the Texas team, declared:

"Stanford's ends, with a fierce style of play, were the deciding factors in the game. S. M. U. had the receivers for its passes, but it couldn't get them off.

"On top of that," McMillan remarked, "the Mustangs were trying too hard to win—they couldn't relax. And Stanford came in with about eight boys who played in last year's Rose Bowl game, determined to offset the adverse criticism piled up against them after Alabama's victory."

Vandals in Africa

The Vandals, a Teutonic race, who ravaged the Roman empire at its decline in the Fifth century, entered North Africa through Spain, and, curiously enough, although the Vandal kingdom died away in sloth about the only word of the German speech which they brought into Africa for the first time, which lingered in the traditions of North Africa for some time, was the word "trinken," "to drink."

A Jiffy Knit That Has A Matching Hat

PATTERN 5512

Any four-to-eight year old will be warm as toast in this Alice Brooks' sweater and cap set. The sweater's a "jiffy" knit—just plain knitting combined with yoke and sleeves of easy lacy stitch, and finished almost before you know it. The cap done in a straight strip, gathered at the top, includes these two stitches, adding a pert pompon for good measure. Choose a colorful yarn, and there'll be no "insisting" she wear it!

In pattern 5512 you will find complete instructions for making the set shown in sizes 4, 6 and 8 (all given in one pattern); an illustration of it and of the stitches needed, material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to the Kingston Daily Freeman Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y.

PERSONALITY OR BEAUTY?

VENUS OF MILO MAY HAVE BEEN A BORE

Now, we ask you, which do you think would be the bigger hit at a party—Venus of Milo, with her placid, dreamy face, or sparkling Emma Murray, noted nineteenth-century actress?

Study their pictures a moment, and try to imagine Venus getting off a new limerick, or dancing around to the strains of "The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze."

Of French heels she'd tip right over, poor thing, but she'd be even more unsteady in the balancing trick of saying the right and bright thing to everybody, flitting from politics to books to skillful flattery, helping the hostess with a sly quest or a new game.

It's not because she's an old-fashioned girl, either. She just hasn't the personality. Emma Murray belongs to the past, too, but we feel sure she knew "what it is all about." We know she had wit. Her charming poise when seated shows that she could rise and cross a room gracefully. We'll bet that her happy, lively laughter always had a word that made the gentleman at the right feel like a very fine fellow indeed.

There's many a static Venus-type beauty sitting serenely in draped satin at parties today—lovely, and the dullest of duds. Fortunately for all of us, personality, the thing that really counts, is something we can cultivate.

We need not sigh for the beauty of the classic Greek. We can just fall to and acquire the tact, poise, voice and speech harmony, good grooming, and interest in people and things, which bring popularity.

Psychologists have been unraveling the mystery of personality for years. They have studied famous people, and found out secrets of personal success which could never dream of. Learn to analyze your personal campaign for charm and a successful life.

Our 10-page Home Institute booklet, INVENTING YOUR PERSONALITY, written by a noted psychologist, illustrated with photographs of great personalities, will give you the key to self study and development.

Touhy Is Captured In Chicago Today

Chicago, Jan. 2 (AP)—"Tommy" Touhy, long sought as the leader of the "Terrible Touhy" gang, was seized today in a west side apartment. Lieut. Thomas Kelly of the state's attorney police disclosed.

Touhy is wanted for questioning about a long list of postal robberies, including a $130,000 holdup in Charlottesville, N. C.

Eldest of five brothers, the 41-year-old "Tommy" was accused by police of organizing the Touhy bootleg gang which controlled illicit liquor sales in northwest Chicago and its suburbs, defying the most powerful Chicago criminal outfits, including the Capone mob.

One of Tommy's brothers, Roger, was sent to prison in 1934 for the $100,000 kidnaping of John Factor, international speculator.

Tommy was captured in bed without resistance when a raiding squad descended upon a flat at 3130 Palmer street. Police found a pistol on a dresser within easy reach, but the gang leader made no attempt to seize it.

His wife Jessie, two daughters, Eleanor, 21, Mrs. Marie Ryan, 24, and Mrs Ryan's husband, Edward, were taken into custody at the same time.

One of our neighbors says he is 80 years old and feels as sound as 59 cents.

Two Assault Cases in Police Court Today

Daniel Rankin, 27, a negro, arrested just before the old year was ushered out, was discharged in police court today when Maggie Bassett, the negress who arrested Rankin and turned him over to the police on a charge of assault in the third degree, when the negress failed to appear to press the charge. At the time Rankin was arrested the negress alleged that he had hurled a lighted lamp at her, striking her in the face.

Cornelius Banks, 32, of 451 Washington avenue, was arrested New Year's Day afternoon by Horace Ellsworth, who charged Banks with assault in the third degree in beating him up on Boulder avenue. This morning in police court the hearing was adjourned to January 10.

SERVICES ANNOUNCED FOR OLIVE BRIDGE M. E. CHURCHES

Services throughout the charge next Sunday, January 5, the first Sunday of the New Year, will be as follows Olive Bridge, Sunday school at 10:15, Mrs Ezra Silkworth, superintendent, followed by morning worship service at 11:00. Samsonville: Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., Frank N. Davis, superintendent, and the evening worship service at 7:30. The pastor's message will be in keeping with the new year. There will be no service in the church at The Vly for a time except by special arrangement.

The pastor and Mrs. Lockett are deeply appreciative and extend their sincere thanks to the friends of Olive Bridge; the Ladies' Aid of The Vly and the Sunday school of Samsonville for the gifts received at the Christmas season.

The prayer and Watch Night gathering at the parsonage on New Year's Eve was one of much enjoyment and inspiration. There was a fine group present who assembled at about nine o'clock. The first hour was spent in singing Gospel songs and choruses. The second hour was given to recreation by the younger members present and visiting and more singing by the others, also refreshments were served. The last hour, which carried the gathering well into the new year was a devotional one during which Arthur Hansen of Hurley, who, with his family was present, brought an informal yet most practical and befitting message. This message was followed by a few remarks by the pastor and as the clock struck the old year out and the new year in all were upon their knees seeking Divine help and guidance in the things and responsibilities of the year ahead, and praising God for the countless mercies shown in the past. It was a blessed time for all present and one to be long remembered.

Cottage prayer meeting will be held next Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Ackert.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Olive Bridge church will be held on Wednesday afternoon, January 8, at the home of Mrs. J. Lindstrom.

Scattergood Is Safe After Ketch Is Sunk

Baltimore, Jan. 2 (AP)—J. Barton Scattergood, Liverpool, N. Y., was a veteran who planned to sail 'round the world in a 32-foot ketch, was ashore in Baltimore today—his craft on the bottom of Chesapeake Bay.

The ketch, which weathered equinoctial winter storms on the Atlantic, was caught in an ice jam off Ketteron and sank. All his money, clothing supplies, instruments and possessions were lost.

Scattergood himself had a narrow escape from death on the ice floes. A flare, grabbed from the deck of the sinking craft, brought two power boats to his rescue. He said he would try to salvage the boat after the weather clears and continue his trip.

"I got out on the ice," he told rescuers, "and almost immediately the floe on which I was standing drifted away. By skipping from cake to cake, I got back to the ketch.

"But by that time she was pretty far gone. My clothes, my money, my instruments, my log—all my possessions—were in the cabin—and the cabin was flooded."

Chivalry

The word chivalry is defined as the medieval system of military privileges, with its peculiar honorary titles and aristocratic limitations of honorable position to the possessors of those titles, founded upon the several degrees of military service rendered on horseback. It also means the usages and customs pertaining to the order of nighthood; the ideal qualifications of a night, collectively, as courtesy, generosity, valor, and dexterity in arms.
